That Russian Feather Bed Restless Womankind What We Fear, We Punish Babies—2-Legged, 4-Legged

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Company.

Long before the war a wise German warned his Kaiser and the rest of the world: "Russia is a feather bed. The farther in you go the more you'll smother."

The Allies learned that it was true when they tried to change Russia's Bolshevik government. Napoleon had time to think it over as he came home through the snow from Moscow.

It will continue to annoy. Vast Russia, tens of thousands of independent villages, practically self-sufficient—territory stretching dimly off into Asia—all that is an aggregation not to be hurried.

Russia won't pay, but she will talk—and meanwhile she will grow bigger and bigger, an international feather bed more and more to be feared, never to be completely conquered. What she and Germany will do as allies remains to be seen. That they will make the rest of Europe worry, is certain.

A dog soon tires of standing on its hind legs—not used to it. Human beings soon tire of the laboriously gathered fruits of evolution (apologies to W. J. Bryan) and civilization.

The human race had to devote at least a hundred thousand years to getting the hair off its face. Then, up North, it had to live through long Winters of snow to get the face bleached. And today ungrateful women, little realizing what a white, hairless, skin means, dip themselves in henna baths and tattoo their faces with spots.

Strange creatures, but it all means something useful undoubtedly. Providence wants only what is right, and Providence is never thwarted—in the long run.

Miss A. Whitney, a social welfare worker, is sentenced to fourteen years' imprisonment in San Francisco for "violating the State Criminal Syndicalism act." The charge against the young woman is that she helped to organize and accepted membership in a Communist organization.

Communist organizations won't achieve anything in this country for at least a hundred years, if ever. But they do frighten lawmakers and judges. When lawmakers and judges are frightened they do something. Hence the fourteen-year sentence.

Pity they are not frightened of a different crime—of organizing trusts and monopolies to rob the people on a big scale. Nobody was ever sent to jail for fourteen years for that crime.

Yet taxation and robbery of the people by monopoly is much more of a menace than any foolish talk of Communism—in this land where ninety-nine and nine-tenths of all the people are intent on getting and keeping what they can as individuals.

The first son of Man o' War, greatest of race horses, is born. Great relolcing. It is a brown colt, the mother a brown mare—Colette. Human beings interested in that colt are far greater in number than those interested in any human birth for 1922.

Racing men know all about that brown colt, the names of his ancestors all the way back to the famous Arab stallion that kicked aside a common heavy horse and started the line of thoroughbreds in England.

There is at least an even chance that the colt will be a good race horse. Perhaps not a wonder, but a good racer.

How little we know about human colts. How little certainty in their ancestors when we go back so very far.

No matter what the father or the mother may have been, how little anybody can guess what the son or the daughter will amount to.

Gentlemen that study eugenics and believe in stirpiculture, tell you "one day we shall breed human beings as exactly, certainly and scientifically as they bred Man o' War and the brown mare Colette."

But we shall do nothing of the kind. In horses you breed bodies, in men you breed minds—and there is a difference.

RICH COUPLE MURDERED

AGED PAIR KILLED BY STRANGE POISON

Chemists Baffled by Deaths of Former Lawrence Woman and Husband

A poisoner with a subtle, Borgia-like knowledge of chemistry, is sought today as the murderer of Mrs. Annie Jackson, formerly of Lawrense, and Freeman H. Jackson, her wealthy husband.

Mrs. Jackson, seventy years old, and her husband, seventy-five, were found dead in the bathroom of their suite in the Hotel Margaret in Brooklyn yesterday.

"Suicide pact" was the first theory of Medical Examiner Wuest of Kings County, Brooklyn, but today he admitted all the evidence pointed to foul play.

The poison used was apparently administered over a long period of time.

It was one of the slow poisons, and so unusual that Brooklyn chemists are frankly baffled.

It was comparatively mild, and would not have killed younger persons, and it was so "smooth" that it did not even irritate the stomachs of the victims.

MARRIED A YEAR AGO.

His wealth might have been the basis of the motive for the double murder, and District Attorney Ruton of Brooklyn is today seeking to find out who, if anyone, might have profited by the deaths of the aged couple.

Mrs. Jackson was formerly Mrs.

BIGAMIST LURED GIRLS

Le Clair Kept Love Diary, Cataloguing List of Victims All Over the Country

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 27.—That he lured a large number of girls was admitted today by John Lawrence Le Clair, who wooed 78 and and married eight.

Le Clair explained that his system was to get women and girls, take them to his sister's home and introduce them as his wives. He palmed the girls off on his mother and sister, he said, just for the sake of appearance.

"But I didn't marry them," declared the modern Solomon. "I seenked them in, and said they were my wives so it would look all right."

A love diary kept by Le Clair was found today by the police, who are thunderstruck by its startling revelations.

Catalogued by States are the names of scores of women the gallant, soft-spoken "Major" made love to.

From Maine to Florida and Texas he stepped his gallant way, leaving behind in State after State one or more women just a bit wiser than

AFFECTION IN LETTERS TO CARTER

Mrs. Morrill Says His Replies Were "More Than She Bargained For"

Mrs. Florence R. Morrill today resumed her testimony in the Dedham Superior Court in the divorce suit brought by Leon Gilbert Morrill, ink manufacturer, who names Douglas S. Carter and Seth K. Chase as co-respondents.

She testified that:

She was drawn to Mr. Carter because he had been "kind and sympathetic" to her since her husband started the divorce action.

She had written affectionate letters to Mr. Carter while he was in the West and he had reciprocated with ardent epistles.

Her husband had deducted from her allowance the price of a piece of steak and a head of lettuce. She had bought these for a little lunch for her mother.

Her husband had forbidden her to play golf on the Belmont Golf Club links.

He had also forbidden her the use of the family automobile.

He had refused to dance with her at parties both attended.

Her husband had refused to speak to her for long periods at a time except "to be abusive."

He had refused to give her any money and declared he "would never give her any again."

TALKED WITH DOCTORS.

She told two physicians of her affections for Mr. Carter, but denied ever having had improper relations with him.

Her husband had ordered a shower bath taken out of their home, because "it smashed the floor" when she used it.

He had shut off her credit at all stores.

He had "humiliated" her in public and his general conduct toward her was "ugly."

Mrs. Morrill said she received Mr. Carter's platonic letters while he was on a trip to San Francisco. She said she answered them in the same strain, although not quite so "affectionately." She added, she thought Mr. Carter's replies were a "little more than she had bargained for."

She said that after her husband stopped giving her any money she had been obliged to go to work for her brother, a real estate dealer, in order to buy things for her children.

Since her husband started the divorce proceedings she testified Mr.

Move to Kill Off Irish Free State Treaty

By International News Service.

Dublin, April 27.—The De Valera Republican party will try to force a test vote in the Dail Eireann on the issue of Republic or Free State government for Ireland.

Miss Mary MacSwiney today announced her intention of demanding a vote on a resolution rescinding ratification of the treaty of peace with England which established the Free State.

Intervention of the Catholic hierarchy has been very effective in turning public sentiment against the militant factions and it was freely predicted in advance of the Dail's session that the Griffith-Collins party will win every test vote.

EVIDENCE IN PIERCE CASE COMPLETED

Legislative Committee to Hear the Arguments Next Wednesday

The taking of testimony in the special legislative hearing on the petition for the removal of Justice Edward P. Pierce of the Supreme Court, ended today when the petitioners rested at 12:45 o'clock.

At the conclusion of an executive conference that followed, Senator Leonard E. Hardy, chairman of the committee, announced adjournment would be taken until next Tuesday morning.

Senator Hardy explained to newspapermen that W. Edwin Elmer, charged with conspiring with Justice Pierce, had requested that he be heard at that time, when further evidence might be offered.

The committee decided that arguments would be heard Wednesday. Attorney George M. Poland, one of the petitioners, stated that he and his colleague considered two hours sufficient time for their argument. Attorney Herbert Parker, speaking for counsel for the respondent, thought more time would be required.

The respondent rested at 12:37

FACTORY DISTRICT IN PERIL

General Alarm Summons Aid From Boston and Somerville as Polish Plant Burns

The factory district of Cambridgeport was threatened with destruction today, when flames burst through the roof of the big shoe polish factory of Whittemore Brothers in Albany street off Massachusetts avenue.

The blaze burst with a roar and so fierce were the flames and so quick their spread that apparatus from Boston and Somerville was summoned by a general alarm.

The blaze continually licked near four huge turpentine tanks, each having a capacity of 4,000 gallons.

Thick clouds of sulphurous fumes forced firemen continually to leave their posts to escape suffocation.

Four hundred girl employes who reported for work at 8 o'clock were forced to stand two blocks from the blaze. They watched the flames roaring out of the windows of the rooms where they worked.

SPECTACULAR FIGHT.

After a three-hour fight firemen snuffed out the blaze with burlap bags and cotton waste, following the collapse of eighty feet of the roof.

Loss was estimated at $75,000.

While firemen were constantly in danger, only one injury was reported William Haley, attached to Ladder Turn-Over.

Company 3, was cut by flying glass.

The blaze was spectacular only in the methods firemen were forced to take to combat it. Firemen in groups with high pressure hose were stationed on the roofs of several adjacent factories pouring powerful streams down into the blaze.

Perched on half a dozen hose wagons were other fire fighters. The streams looked puny as great clouds of smoke rolled out of the factory building and engulfed them.

The blaze was discovered by James Kelleher, a factory hand. He saw water leaking from the fifth floor and notified Andrew Lyons, chief engineer, who sent Jack O'Keefe, a fireman, to investigate. He found the fifth floor paste room a mass of flames, the automatic water sprinkler playing ineffectually upon them from the ceiling.

In the paste room eight gas stoves are used in concocting the paste mixture. A giant pump connects by a pipe with the huge turpentine tanks in the yard, which are operated in the making of the polish.

When Cambridge firemen arrived Chief Vose, after one look at the blaze, sent in a second and third, and then a general alarm. Fire apparatus poured in from Boston, Cambridge and Somerville.

The blaze by this time had burst through several places in the roof and had spread into the company's new factory constructed from the old by five doors only.

Firemen were hurried to roofs and efforts made to keep the blaze from further spreading.

The fixture of the Hood Ice Cream Company, a hundred feet away, was guarded lest the wind shift and sweep the flames toward it.

Three families were rendered homeless and lost all their belongings when fire destroyed the old Marling estate on Main street, Wilmington.

The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Riley. Their two married daughters and four grandchildren. The fire started in the brush near the barn. Mrs. Riley and her grandchildren were unable to stop the flames.

By the time the Woburn and W.-Wilmington firemen made the long run to the scene the house was doomed.

Neighbors assisted Mrs. Riley in carrying her furniture to the street, but the fire spread to the furniture and destroyed it. Firemen succeeded in saving the house of Franz E. Woods, across the street from the Riley farm.

Attorney Disbarred by Supreme Court Decree

JOHN P. LEAHY

LAWYER LEAHY IS DISBARRED BY COURT

Attorney John P. Leahy was disbarred by Justice Charles F. Jenney in the Supreme Court today. He was charged with the misappropriation of funds of the heirs of the late Patrick Lennox of Lynn, for whom he acted as counsel in a bankruptcy case.

His disbarment has been before the court a long time, and had been continued from time to time. He had the assistance of a committee of the Boston Bar Association, headed by Henry V. Cunningham and Arthur Berenson, who raised $4,000 towards enabling him to meet his obligations.

Mr. Leahy, however, was unable to raise the rest of the necessary amount.

Mr. Leahy was present in court when Justice Jenney announced his decision, and made a brief statement. He said the present situation is due to financial distress, and he had hoped to be able to adjust his indebtedness.

Attorney Berenson told the court that after the fullest investigation, he was convinced that Mr. Leahy did no intentional wrong, and made no wilful misappropriation. It was a case, he said, of pure financial distress.

Justice Jenney spoke of his long acquaintance with Mr. Leahy, and the pleasant relations which had always existed between himself and the lawyer.

"The responsibility of a lawyer is more than a pecuniary obligation," said the Court.

"I feel constrained to say under the circumstances that the matter cannot be allowed to remain in abeyance any longer. I cannot see my way clear to allowing this case to remain open."

SIGHTS THOUSANDS OF PORPOISES IN SWELL

Washington, April 27.—An unusual phenomenon was today puzzling naval officers. An abnormal groundswell off the North Carolina coast was reported as occurring yesterday afternoon by the naval collier Prometheus. At one time thousands of porpoises were leaping into the air.

HARTFORD GIRL TELLS HOW SHE WAS WOOED

By SHANNON CORMACK.

Theresa R. Hamelin, one of "Major" John Lawrence Le Clair's wives, told how the debonair young man with his smooth speech and dashing manner was able to woo and wed girls in different parts of New England at the rate of two a month.

"I fell for him at first sight," said this attractive young woman of twenty-three Summers.

"In July of last year I went with two other girls to the Capitol Amusement Park. Le Clair was there in a sailor's uniform. His brother, Bert, was with him.

SMILED AND SHE FELL.

"There's a fellow I could fall for," I laughingly told one of my girl friends as Le Clair passed us. I don't know whether he heard me or not, but anyway a few minutes later he turned round and smiled at me. 'I was gone.'

"Le Claire singled me out. His brother paid his attentions to the other girls. We went home together and when he left me at my mother's door at No. 1936 Park street he asked me to meet him next night.

"We went to a movie. As we walked home he told me wonderful stories of his life in the army and navy. He said that he had been overseas with a Burlington, Vt., infantry regiment and that after that was discharged on account of his wounds, he enlisted in the navy.

PROPOSAL FOLLOWED.

"'You are the only girl I ever loved,' he said as we reached my door. 'Won't you marry me?' He kissed me. I was madly in love with him even then, but it was all so sudden my head was in a whirl. I put him off, but I didn't sleep a wink.

"He said I had made him the happiest man in the world—gee what a joke!" and the young factory worker sat back in her chair and laughed till she wept.

"I didn't want my mother to know of my being married. She was ill I had. My father was dead. On the Friday afternoon that we went for the license, I gave my name as Theresa Hamilton, at his suggestion.

TOOK HER HOME.

"That night we went to a show and he took me to my own home and I went himself to No. 22 Beach street where he was living with his father, sister and brother.

"Two nights later he told Mrs. Barton, with whom we lodged, that we were married. Mother was out of town.

"'Then he should stay here with you,' Mrs. Burton said. He stayed there that night. A few days later we went to Spencer, Mass., as my mother had returned. We spent two weeks there.

"That was the beginning of the end.

"I paid the rent, and every morning he would go out saying that he would look for a job. But he didn't find one. One morning he refused to get up.

"'You should be ashamed of sponging on me,' I told him. He flew into a rage and tried to hit me.

"'Go your way, and I'll go mine,' I told him.

"'Do you mean that?' he asked. He threw toilet articles at my head.

"He muttered something, wrapped up his clothes and walked from the room.

"For an hour he paced up and down the sidewalk outside the house. Then he walked away. That's the last I ever saw of him, thank God."

AMERICA TO RETAIN ITS RIGHTS IN EGYPT

Washington, April 27 (By International News Service).—The United States has extended recognition to the new government of Egypt subject to the continuance of American rights in that country, it was officially announced at the State Department today. This means that the United States will not surrender the extra territorial rights which have been enjoyed for many years. The Egyptian government has accepted the recognition under the American terms.

PROPRIETOR OF NEWTON SALOON FOUND GUILTY

John T. Dwyer, proprietor of a near-beer saloon at No. 310 Watertown street, Newton, was found guilty today to two charges of sale of intoxicating liquor to a police inspector. The first case was placed on file, but in the second case a fine of $200 was imposed. Dwyer appealed and was held in $600. He was a member of the metropolitan police for eleven years and was stationed at Riverside.

ALLSTON COLISEUM TO BE DISCUSSED TONIGHT

A meeting will be held tonight at the Algonquin Club by the Coliseum Trust, at which plans will be discussed for the building of a $1,000,000 Coliseum in the Allston-Brighton district. Mayor Curley and Governor Cox will attend. Former Congressman Samuel L. Powers is interested in the project and it is said that most of the money has already been subscribed.

MAJOR LE CLAIR ADMITS HE VICTIMIZED 78 GIRLS

Here are the States in which La Clair's love diary lists women he wooed, won, bested or broke: Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Texas, New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

In Dutchess County jail, in gloating communion with himself, LeClair sits today, master of them all in the arduous and dangerous art of darting the shafts of love into the hearts of gullible girls.

Even in the face of the statement in Hartford of his sister that he had brought wives home, "Major Le Clair continued today to deny having married anybody but Bertha Maude Hayes.

The statement of his sister, Mrs. Robert Ferguson, that he introduced at various times Theresa Hamilton and Anna Kelly as wives brought forth merely the usual smirk and a shrug of the shoulders.

"Never knew either of these ladies," grinned the youth. "Don't know whether my sister and everybody else marry me off to all those women. I know girls in Boston and Hartford and had affairs, but I didn't marry them."

"I WORK FAST AND FURIOUS"

Eight women are named as victims to the lures of the "Major," his gallant speech and ardent courting. They are said to have become his wives. The Department of Justice is on the trail of four others—three of them Boston girls.

He admits only one ceremony, but confesses, with a swelling of the chest and an air of distinction, to seventy-eight affairs since January 1, 1912, extending from Texas to Florida to Maine to Pennsylvania.

"I work fast, furious and feminine. If one don't fall for me I tackle another. I don't draw any line, blonde, brunette, tall, small; they all fall for me, at least most of them."

That is his modest creed of operation.

Did he do away with any of the eight, some of whom are reported missing? The very idea. It was an insulting suggestion that he spurned with the haughtily indignant denial, "I ain't murdered nobody."

Did he marry the eight? Not that he knew of, "unless I was hopped up with coke."

He admits to drug addiction and explains it as a habit he acquired on the Mexican border in 1912 and renewed in France in 1917, when recuperating from war wounds.

Le Clair—he also calls himself St. Clair, because it sounds "more toney"—is twenty-six. He is of medium height and slender build, throws his wavy black hair back from the forehead in a thick, poetic mass. His brown eyes gleam with a sense of notoriety. He smiles constantly, seems, indeed, quite happy in having the spot light focussed on him, and with vanity seeks to adjust a tie, as the camera centres on him.

He "breezed into town," as he says it, on March 25, with Bertha Maud Hayes, of Connecticut. They established themselves in a $12-a-day suite at the Nelson House. He was quite swanky—Malacca bent, swagger stick, jaunty gait. Here on important army intelligence business, he let it be known.

Bell hops kowtowed. Clerks were affable. Waiters were servile. At the table he charged meals, in the barber shops he charged the jobs. The bootblack was told to collect at the desk. Walked like a lord and talked like a king. They all fell for it.

Came March 23. He decided to get married. But was short of cash. Would the bell hop lend him ten dollars until his check arrived? Very embarrassing, of course, but such things can't be helped.

DIDN'T PAY MINISTER.

He spent the ten on a wedding ring and taxicab to the Washington Street Methodist Church. With a wave of the hand after the ceremony with Miss Hayes, he regretted he had no cash with him, but if the Rev. George A. Shahan would step around to the hotel he'd get a check. The minister didn't step around.

The girl left that day for home, she had tired of being broke.

Before she had gone Le Clair was arranging for stenographers. He went to a typewriting agency and rented a machine for $5 a day for Miss Mina Van Wirt, tendering a $20 check on a Fort Worth bank.

Did she get a proposal? Well, she replied shyly with a drop of the lids, "We were friendly. Perhaps he did want me to marry him. But I wouldn't think of it, of course."

PROPOSED TO STENOGRAPHER.

He asked Miss Van Wirt to send him two stenographers. He had a big lot of correspondence to send. She sent Margaret Downs and Evelyn Smith. He kept them busy sending long letters to generals of fictitious names. They must have numbered fifty. They were about "carrying out orders, buying an automobile, making progress," etc.

He liked Margaret. Would she marry him? She would not. He didn't like Evelyn.

He set out for other prey. But before he could find her, the check for twenty came back, "no funds." He was arrested and now awaits grand jury action

But Le Clair smiles and smiles, and talks and talks. He says:

It was the cocaine. I come from Ft. Worth. My mother is in Barre. My father owns a machine shop in Hartford. I've got brothers and sisters. I don't know where they are. When I was fourteen, in 1911, I enlisted with the Twelfth Infantry on the border. Said I was eighteen.

Got the coke habit in 1912. Got in a fight with the Mexicans in 1916. Kept re-enlisting. Easy life. Three square a day, you know.

NEVER WAS CIVILIAN.

Nope, never had no civilian life. Went to France with the second division. Got shrapnel in the stomach at Chateau Thierry. Hospital for thirteen months. Got the drug habit again. Came back with it. Still a dope fiend. That's what's the mater with me, I guess.

Not in the army now. Was attached to hospital work in Washington up to three months ago. Was in the cavalry. Just before that what hospital was you attached to? Gee, funny I can't remember. My superior officer's name. Gosh, what do you think of that, can't seem to recall now. No, I ain't lying. Where do you get that stuff? Those generals I wrote to? Cocaine.

Say, that's a lot of bunk about me having eight wives. The cops must be taking dope, same as me. Valmar Tarr of Gloucester? Don't know that jane. Tessie Hamilton of Hartford? I'd like to meet her, living them up. I didn't marry them, unless I was hopped up with coke. But I know some dames in Gloucester. I went away with one in Salem for two weeks. Did I do away with any of them?—I ain't murdered nobody. I'll tell the world. How did they fall for me? Say, that's easy. Work fast, furious and frequent. Make love, show love and they're yours. All alike, blondes, brunettes, tall, small. Haven't got the jack for cabarets. But a park and the moon and a lot of mushy words do the trick.

Sheriff E. R. Davis, who arranged the interview, suggested the prisoner tell about No. 8. Miss Hayes. Le Claire said:

Bertha was the only one I married. She's my woman.

WALL ST. 'WOLF' ACCUSED BY WOMAN

Claims She Lost $6,300; David Lamar Held on Larceny Charge

New York, April 27.—David Lamar, once known as "The Wolf of Wall Street," was arraigned before Magistrate McAndrews today on a charge of grand larceny preferred by Mrs. Genevieve Brennan. Mrs. Estelle Allison, who said she was an actress and a scenario writer, was arraigned with him on a similar charge.

Mrs. Brennan alleges she lost $6,300 in a stock deal with Lamar, who was introduced to her under an assumed name by Mrs. Allison.

A large crowd gathered for a glimpse of Lamar. The case was adjourned until May 5.

Lamar's counsel issued a statement, asserting that if Mrs. Brennan lost any money in a deal with Lamar, it was "a legitimate transaction."

$13,233 FOR PLAINTIFF IN STOCK TRANSACTION

Pittsfield, April 27.—A jury in Superior Court today brought in a verdict of $13,233 for the plaintiff in the case of Manton A. Wood of Pittsfield against Charles F. MRS. MORRILL SAYS CARTER'S SYMPATHY DREW HER TO HIM

TELLS OF AFFECTION IN NOTES

Carter had been kind and sympathetic to her.

"He realized," she said, "what I was going through."

Regarding the Paragon Park incident she said it was a dinner party given in her honor by her mother.

"I attended the affair with Mr. Carter," she said, "after my husband said he would not accompany me if Mr. Carter was to be at the party.

"On our way back from the park Mr. Carter and I stopped at his Boston offices, as I wished to see something he had in his desk," she said. "He gave me some candy and I asked him for a drink of water. We had no intoxicating drinks."

TOLD HER HUSBAND.

"When I reached home," she said, "I told my husband that I had stopped at Carter's office. He made no comment."

In reply to a question as to whether she had ever been in bed with Mr. Carter witness blushed and said: "No."

"I asked you yesterday," said her attorney, Sherman L. Whipple, "if you were ever in bed with Mr. Carter and you said, 'No, not in bed.' What did you mean?"

"I meant that I had taken breakfast into him in bed and had sat at the foot of the bed," replied the witness.

She denied she had ever had improper relations with Carter.

This was Mrs. Morrill's second day on the witness stand.

The courtroom was jammed with members of Boston and Brookline's smart set. Court attaches were forced to turn people away.

Mrs. Morrill was pale and drawn. She was dressed in Alice blue.

Mrs. Morrill said she went to the Pons on one occasion with Mr. Carter in Mrs. Carter's automobile. Relative to a dinner party she had arranged at her home to precede a dance she was giving at a Boston hotel, she said she arrested her husband to attend both the dinner and the dance with her. She was greatly disappointed at his refusal, she said.

"I was greatly embarrassed because he would not attend. He was distinctly rude towards me and my guests."

Mrs. Morrill declared that up to July 25, 1918, her husband had made no criticism of either her or Mr. Carter for paying any attention to her. She said that on one occasion, when Mr. Carter remained overnight at her Brookline apartment, she accompanied Mr. Carter to Providence on a business trip.

MOTORED TO PROVIDENCE.

"It was such a nice day I suggested we motor down. We had dinner at the Crown Hotel. We returned to Brookline the same afternoon."

Attorney Whipple declared, "Mrs. Morrill is a woman humiliated and brutalized by her husband," during a plea to the court that a conversation July 25, 1918, between Mr. Carter and Mrs. Morrill be admitted as evidence. Despite objections of Attorney Frank W. Knowlton, the conversation was admitted.

Q.—When your husband came home that day, did you have a conversation with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was his attitude and demeanor towards you during that conversation? A.—Brutal.

Q.—Up to that time had you ever been conscious of any motive that could be regarded as affection for Mr. Carter? A.—Never.

Q.—Had there been any conversation between you and Mr. Carter relative to affection? A.—Never. Our conversations were never on low or debasing subjects.

Q.—Were you conscious you had selected Mr. Carter as a particular friend over any other? A.—No.

Q.—Had Mr. Carter ever referred up to that time, to any unhappiness between him and his wife? A.—Never.

Q.—Did you have a talk with him about it? A.—Yes, I talked with him in the presence of a maid.

Q.—Were you forbidden to have friends call at the house at that time? A.—No, except that I was not permitted to have Mr. Carter come to the house.

Q.—Tell us something about the time you had friends call at the house and there wasn't enough food. A.—One day when I had asked my mother to lunch I found there was not sufficient food. I went to a store and got a slice of steak and a head of lettuce. I had this charged to Mr. Morrill's bill. This was later deducted from my allowance.

Q.—Did your husband forbid you to order household goods? A.—Yes.

Q.—He stopped your credit? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you go to dances? A.—Yes.

Q.—Meet Mr. Morrill at any of these dances? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he dance with you? A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Morrill remain home evenings much at this time? A.—He used to come home to dinner and then go right out.

Mrs. Morrill said she was forbidden by her husband to play golf at the Belmont Country Club.

HEARD STORIES.

Q.—Were you ever refused the right to play there? A.—Yes. Last Spring I went to play with Mrs. Allen and Dr. Cotter of Cambridge. I had played there under my husband's membership card. I felt humiliated when I was stopped.

She said that sometime later it came to her attention that stories were being circulated about her and Douglas S. Carter.

Q.—What effect did these stories have? A.—I was very upset over them.

Mrs. Morrill then told of receiving letters from Mr. Carter while he was in San Francisco.

Q.—Speaking generally, were the letters in an affectionate strain? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were yours to him the same. A.—About the same, although not so affectionate.

Q.—Last Fall had your attitude toward Mr. Carter grown warmer? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you describe the state of your mind toward Mr. Carter before he left for the West? A.—I had a very cordial regard for Mr. Carter as a very kind and sympathetic friend. It was simply formed in a purely appreciative feeling for Mr. Carter.

Mrs. Morrill said Mr. Carter's letters showed a very affectionate regard for her and contained idealistic suggestions.

Q.—Have you a clear memory of Dr. Parker while you were ill? Do you remember Dr. Parker and Dr. Courtney? A.—I remember Dr. Parker.

Q.—Did he call at your request? A.—No.

shower bath episode. You were accustomed to use the shower bath? A.—Yes, daily.

Q.—Did you finally cease to use it? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why. A.—Because Mr Morrill had it taken out.

Q.—Did you have a talk with him about it? A.—Yes, I talked with him in the presence of a maid.

Q.—Were you forbidden to have friends call at the house at that time? A.—No, except that I was not permitted to have Mr. Carter come to the house.

ACCUSED WIFE ON THE WITNESS STAND

MRS. FLORENCE R. MORRILL TESTIFYING

LETTER IS CLEW TO BREWSTER SLAYER

A young Pittsfield, N. H., man, whose last name begins with N, is being sought today as the possible murderer of night Station Agent Ralph W. Brewster of Winchester.

Police of Massachusetts and New Hampshire regarded the "N" clew as the most tangible obtained since Brewster was slain in the Boston & Maine station a week ago tonight.

The youthful stranger who killed time in Edward McKenzie's bowling alley in Winchester a few hours before the murder, and is suspected of having gone to Winchester for the specific purpose of slaying Brewster, signed himself "N" on the alley score sheet.

He wore a cloth hat of the "sport" type, the same kind as the one found near the railroad station after the station agent had been shot.

SCAN VOTING LISTS.

Voting lists in Pittsfield were inspected by the police of that city today and shoe shop employes whose names begin with "N" and who ever knew Brewster were questioned.

The authorities are having some trouble therein establishing a motive.

But they are proceeding on the theory that the man who shot the Winchester station agent need not have been a personal enemy but may have been the friend of an enemy of Brewster's, or even a hired killer.

Brewster was a New Hampshire man, with many friends in and just outside of Pittsfield, and he may, without knowledge of his family, have had some enemies there, as well.

His men and women friends in the New Hampshire town are being checked up by the authorities.

Brewster's source of income was under investigation today by State police. Apparently that income was large, much larger than the income of an ordinary assistant ticket agent. He owned several automobiles, and is reported to have been a plunger in stocks. He lost $3,000 just before his death, it is said.

In the belief that the mysterious source of his seeming wealth may have some very intimate connection with his murder, probers are today searching for a clew which will solve the mystery of his financial affairs.

Despatches from Pittsfield, N. H., where two heavily armed possemen spent the night scouring the woods around Catamount Mountain in search of an alleged mysterious stranger, thought to have been Brewster's murderer, told of the solution of this mystery.

The man of mystery proved to be Cy Drew, an eighteen-year-old boy, who had come into the woods to rescue his young collie dog, injured in a fight with a woodchuck.

Drew's dog was one of the three men who reported seeing the "mysterious stranger" dash madly into the woods.

LODGE WRITES TO MAYOR ON HOSPITAL PROJECT

Promise to take up the matter of a new hospital in Boston for disabled veterans was contained in a letter received today from Senator Lodge by Mayor Curley. The letter calls the Mayor's attention to the fact that Rutland, Mass., was selected as the site for one such institution. "For this reason," the letter reads, "it might be difficult to get a second new hospital built by the United States in a single State. Undoubtedly there may be some additional hospital accommodations needed in the neighborhood of Boston, but perhaps some additions to the hospitals now existing, but these are points which I am going to take up with the director of the Veterans' Bureau."

CITIZENS FIGHT WOODS FIRE IN BEVERLY

Beverly, April 27.—Every available citizen turned out today to fight a fire, which, starting in the rear of ex-President Taft's former Summer home in Commerce lane, swept towards Pride's Crossing and Beverly Farms.

Many of the Summer homes of the exclusive North Shore colony were in the path of the flames, which got beyond control of the firefighters. Three alarms called out the regular and volunteer firemen of Beverly and Beverly Farms, who were aided by crowds of men and boys.

COX REJECTS BILL TO LIFT CIVIL SERVICE

Governor Cox today refused to sign the bill which would enable the Metropolitan District Commission to appoint a superintendent of the Metropolitan police without a civil service test. In a message to the Senate he said that if it wants to pass a bill providing definitely for the appointment of Captain Herbert W. West as superintendent, as a reward for twenty-six years of faithful service, he will sign it.

COOL WEATHER STAYS: VERMONT HAS SNOW

According to the official forecast, Boston is to experience continued fair and cool weather tonight and tomorrow, with fresh to strong northwest winds. In Northfield and Burlington, Vt., and in Denver it snowed slightly today. The coldest spot in New England is at Greenville, Me., where it is 34.

SHOOTS FORMER WIFE'S CALLER AND SELF

Leominster, April 27.—Crazed by jealousy over the attentions paid to his divorced wife by John Catsis, Fitchburg business man, Wallace Hewey, 28 years old, shot and twice wounded Catsis on the threshold of Mrs. Hewey's home here today, and then shot himself.

Catsis is at the Burbank Hospital in Fitchburg, and will recover. Hewey it at the Leominster Hospital and will probably die.

Words had been calling on Mrs. Hewey. Her former husband told the police he had stood in the darkened doorway all the evening waiting for Catsis to appear.

Hewey came down from Bellows Falls, Vt., a few days ago, where he had been working as a strike-breaker at a paper plant. He bought the revolver with which he did the shooting at a local hardware store yesterday.

Mrs. Hewey was given a divorce from her husband a month ago on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment. The name of Catsis who is a local merchant, was mentioned during the trial.

Since the trial, according to the police, Catsis has been a frequent caller on Mrs. Hewey, who made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Clancey Ingleson.

JUDGE PIERCE QUESTIONED

o'clock, after Attorney George L. Mayberry had introduced various legal documents having to do with the litigation in which Ulmer was involved. One of these was a motion filed by Ulmer June 11, 1920, asking the court to reconsider the appointment of Charles S. Hill as master. Another was a motion for recommittal of Hill's report, filed by Attorneys Poland and Jordan. In connection with this motion, Attorney Poland recalled Hill to testify that he had ruled that he considered the testimony of one witness have been perjury.

After the case for the petitioners was rested the committee went into executive session for three quarters of an hour. At the conclusion Senator Hardy announced that the question of submitting all the evidence at the hearing to the General Court was without the jurisdiction of the committee. He added that it could be brought up on order. If this evidence were submitted, as was requested early in the hearing by counsel for the respondent, it would require making 230 copies of each day's testimony, running about 160 pages a day.

Justice Pierce declared today that he had never regarded his acceptance of rose gifts from Attorney Ulmer as "improper" and did not believe that Mr. Ulmer at any time tried to "influence him" either through these gifts or his "words of flattery."

The judge concluded his testimony, after cross-examination by Attorney George M. Poland, at 10:45 o'clock this morning. He left the stand with a smile on his lips and took a seat within the bar enclosure.

VISITED BY ULMER.

Quizzed further about the rose gifts, the judge said they began to arrive in the Fall of 1919. During the Winter of 1920 and 1921 he said they came in increased quantities.

"I never considered it improper for me to accept these gifts," he said.

"It never occurred to me that Mr. Ulmer was sending them with any idea of trying to influence me. I do not believe that ever was his intention."

He said that in addition to sending roses Mr. Ulmer paid him visits at the courthouse and also at his home on "stormy nights" during the Winter of 1920 and 1921. He said these visits were devoted to little "social chats" during which no mention of

Henry Ford Reports Loss of His Auto, a Flivver, of Course

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 27.—Henry Ford called the police by telephone today and notified them of the loss of his automobile.

"What kind of a car was it?" the police clerk asked.

"Why, a Ford, of course," Mr. Ford answered.

business affairs was ever made by Mr. Ulmer.

He declared that throughout his relationship with Mr. Ulmer he had always endeavored to defend himself in a "straight, strict and upright way."

"I never suspected that Mr. Ulmer was seeking to take any unfair advantage of me through our acquaintance," he said. "He never gave any sign to that effect. I do not believe any of the heirs to the Henry Wood Sons estate ever thought Mr. Ulmer was seeking to influence me with his gifts of roses or his other kindnesses. There was certainly nothing in our relations which should arouse any such idea."

FELT NO OBLIGATION.

"I never felt that I owed Mr. Ulmer any obligation for his roses or because of our acquaintance," he said. "Mr. Ulmer visited me in the courthouse lobby in the same manner that other lawyers do. There was no restriction against him calling there, no more than against any other lawyer who might care to call."

"When Mr. Ulmer first came to me," he said, "I understood that the heirs of the estate were getting nothing—or very little—out of it. Mr. Ulmer told me that he even had to buy clothing for Mrs. Hand, the treasurer, because she was so poor. Later when I heard that some of the legatees were drawing money I foresaw trouble if creditors were waiting."

DID NOT USE "CRUCIFY."

"I never doubted Mr. Ulmer's ability to manage the estate if given his own way and the money to work with," he said.

"I believe he was always trying to do his best by the heirs and others concerned. I do not believe he ever tried to make capital out of his associations with me."

"But you later sat in a case where Mr. Ulmer had brought a motion?" asked Attorney Poland.

"Yes," admitted the witness.

VETERANS HELP GUARD SHOPS AFTER RIOT

Mattapan Storekeepers Get Back Business Places Despite Opposition

Fifty husky World War veterans who helped Clifton H. Eadie, himself a veteran, defend his Mattapan square shop in two pitched battles with a gang of carpenters seeking to enter it by force and rip it apart without his consent, remained on guard before the shop all night to prevent a repetition of the attack.

The battles, fought with bare fists and sticks, took place when Mr. Eadie and another officeholder in the same building, Samuel E. Nelson, decided to defend the places they had leased against agents of the owner.

The building in question is located at Nos. 1645 and 1647 Blue Hill avenue. Mr. Nelson has a real estate office there, while Mr. Eadie operates a shoe shop.

The war veterans surged to help the pair in their two brushes with the belligerent carpenters, and after the intruders had been dispersed they remained to stand guard, arming themselves with shoe lasts, spanners and other improvised weapons.

Mr. Eadie and Mr. Nelson were elected by force night before last. They spent the greater part of yesterday—when they were not battling to hold the form—in getting their property moved back into their respective shops. Today they announce that they are doing "Business as usual."

Yesterday morning the men came to open their places of business and found a wooden framework erected on the sidewalk in front of the building. Inside—the doors had been ripped off—they found that large sections of flooring had been taken up, and all of their personal belongings had been dumped in the alley behind.

A number of valuable deeds and mortgages owned by Mr. Nelson had blown away down the alley, lost for good. The machine which Mr. Eadie used for repairing shoes was damaged to the extent of $500 or more it is alleged.

Mr. Nelson and Mr. Eadie hired helpers and relaid the floors, put up the doors and moved their stuff back in. A start had hardly been made, however, when some ten or twelve "carpenters," said to have been led by Joseph McKenna, charged the shops and a small riot resulted, ending in the gang's failure to enter by force. Another battle ensued, in which fists and sticks were used freely, and again the carpenters were repulsed.

POISON KILLED RICH COUPLE

F. A. Warren of Lawrence. She was the widow of F. A. Warren, who for years conducted a lodgery shop on Essex street in that city. Her son, Winfield P. Warren, thirty-six years old, now conducts the business.

She was married to Jackson a year ago in Lawrence. Rev. Arthur Barber, pastor of Trinity Church there, performed the ceremony. She had met the retired manufacturer at Palm Beach while both were spending the Winter there.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson frankly married for companionship in their declining years, and had planned to enjoy all the creature comforts in the time left to them.

In line with that determination they avoided the bleak Northern Winter by going to Palm Beach, and were back in their Brooklyn suite only a week when they succumbed to the mysterious poison of their unknown executioner.

CHEERFUL A WEEK AGO.

"My mother wrote me only a week ago," said Winfield Warren. "There was certainly no hint of suicide in that letter. It was full of the love of life. She spoke cheerfully of the days ahead and with evident enjoyment of her Winter in the South."

That was before Winfield Warren went to Brooklyn to make the funeral arrangements. Today she wired from Brooklyn that his mother had died of ptomaine poisoning and his stepfather collapsed from the shock.

Jackson had several relatives, most of them living in New Jersey, but so far as the police have been able to ascertain, none of them was very close to the old man.

The Jacksons were found dead in the bathroom of their suite by a maid who went to clean up the room. The woman lay on the floor, her husband a few feet away. He had apparently taken death harder than she. His mouth was burned and there were indications that he lived twelve hours after she had expired.

The potency of the terrible poison is indicated by the fact that, although they lived in a hotel, the Jacksons were unable to cry out for help. Chemists assisted in the double autopsy and they are examining opium derivatives in search of something so insidious that it steals upon its victims unawares and so powerful that it paralyzes even the powers of speech after it begins to work.

JILTED WOOER'S RIVAL WINS GIRL ELOPER

Rose Hakim's Parents at Last Consent She Shall Wed Man She Likes

Rose Hakim, the fourteen-year-old Hudson street girl, who jilted the man her family selected as her husband and eloped with John Mansono, the man of her choice, is to marry the latter after all.

Caught in West Bridgewater by police called into the case by her family, she was returned to her parents, while Mansono was charged with abduction.

But her family have decided that she may wed as she likes after all, and the young couple have filed their marriage application at City Hall. Both live at No. 32 Hudson street. The prospective groom is twenty-one years old.

What Your Dreams Mean

Have you money troubles? Has your mother-in-law her eye on the nicest room in your home? Does your husband go wandering off at night to the pool room? Or does your flapper daughter set up her opinion against your knowledge without the least blush at her audacity?

Cheer up. Just before you go to sleep tonight, compose your mind and think: "I shall triumph over those who are working against my happiness." And then be sure to dream that someone goes chasing a wild boar, and being victorious, brings you the boar's head as a prize. Then you will know that your difficulties will all be solved shortly.

Dream Editor:

How can you tell what dreams mean? Are you a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter? Last night I dreamed I had eight fingers on my left hand and could use it as well as I can the other.

Cambridge. FLORENCE M.

No, the Dream Editor is not the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter. The interpretations of dreams as given in this column are according to the oldest and therefore the wisest authorities, Indian, Greek and Roman. Your dream of having three more fingers than usual on your hand means that you are soon to form friendships with three people who will be very influential in your future life.

Dream Editor:

Last night I dreamed I was eating about the best pudding I ever tasted. It seems I had made it myself, too. What does that mean?

Watertown. T. N. T.

You are to receive an unexpected visitor. T. N. T. Your cooking of the pudding does not represent much, only a lot of small talk among our friends.

Dream Editor:

Will you tell me what it means to be in the forest among a flock of pretty birds? Most of the birds were flying around one particular oak tree.

Chelsea. MARY A. F.

Your dream of the birds signifies that you will be drawn into a lawsuit. But there is no need to worry about it as long as they were in the oak tree, because this indicates that the outcome of the case will be profitable to you.

The Dream Editor of the Boston American will tell you the meaning of that dream you had last night. Write her about it in detail and watch for your answer. All letters about dreams should be addressed to "Dream Editor, Boston American, No. 30 Sumner street, Boston."

SPEEDERS MAY KILL 100 AT CROSSINGS

Declaring that the lives of more than 100 will be sacrificed this year unless something is done to stop speeding past corners and crossings, State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today announced he will suspend the license of every autoist who crosses an intersecting street at an unreasonable rate of speed.

"Last year we analyzed 400 fatal accidents," said Goodwin, "and found that 106 of them occurred at intersecting streets.

"No man has a right to cross an intersecting street, where the view is obscured, at a speed greater than will permit him to bring his car to a stop if the necessity presents itself. Every day thousands of motorists are taking this foolish chance.

"By the law of averages, he is bound sooner or later to hit someone. With the increase in the number of autos, the probability of an accident is increasing every day."

MILK SCANDALS EXPOSED BY LAWYER

How hundreds of farmers in the State have been victimized by fly-by-night contractors, who for a time pay them a penny a quart more for their milk and then vanish, was today described by Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware.

Sawyer appeared before the Senate Ways and Means Committee to demand a State investigation of the methods of collecting and distributing milk.

"These gentlemen get an auto, cover a radius of fifty miles a day and pick up a route wherever they can," said Mr. Sawyer. "Like Ponzi, they pay a cent more and pay it promptly. Suddenly they begin to plead 'hard times,' ask for a month or two to make good their debts and then seen no more."

BOY WHO SOUGHT TO DIE TAKES SENTENCE

Issy Iken, 16-year-old boy who attempted suicide in the juvenile session of Maiden Court, was a meek young man today. Following his sentence to Shirley School, the courtroom was thrown into an uproar and an alert police officer knocked a bottle from young Iken's hands. Today Issy withdraw an appear from the sentence. He was sentenced for violating probation.

JUDGES SPURN $2,000 MORE IN SALARY

Former Governor John L. Bates today declared that not a justice of the Supreme Court has accepted the salary increase of two years ago, because they could not afford to give up their pensions.

The bill then passed by the Legislature increases the salary from $10,000 to $12,000 a year, but provided that any judge who accepted the increase would be required to forfeit his claim to a pension.

Bates advocated a bill which would enable them to accept the increase without forfeiting the pension.

3 HURT IN BACK BAY FLOOR COLLAPSE

Three men were injured, several others escaped by jumping, and the Copley square district was thrown into excitement today when the flooring of a building being demolished at No. 2 Oxford terrace, Back Bay, crashed to the basement.

The injured men, all taken to the Relief Hospital, were: Alkid Pelletier, No. 82 Cambridge street, multiple minor injuries; Walter Sankas, No. 770 Cross street, multiple minor injuries; John Scowstik, No. 25 Moulton street, heat cut.

The flooring swayed before it gave way, and this morning gave the other men a chance to jump.

High Heels Crippling American Women, Says Doctor

American women are "at the mercy" of French heels. If they persist in wearing the extreme stylish mode of shoes, with high, inconvenient heels, they will be unable to walk at all in fifty years.

So says Dr. Rudolph G. List in a speech before members of the Orthopaedic Society of Boston. People ought to go barefooted more than they do, he added.

CHARGES BRIBE WAS OFFERED WITNESS

Claims by a witness that he had been offered money not to testify and counter claims by another witness that the first man had volunteered to leave town for $500 ended the trial of Arthur W. Mars in Superior Court today.

Mars was charged with stealing $700 worth of furniture from a downtown store by which he was employed. Jacob Wasserman and his wife, Edna, of Hoskins street, Dorchester, were charged with receiving the stolen furniture.

Stephen Sullivan, also an employe of the firm which lost the goods, testified that Sept. 29, 1921, he helped Mars unload the furniture on a truck and drive it to the Wasserman home. Sullivan pleaded guilty in Dorchester Court to larceny of the furniture and was placed on probation.

Walter Mackey, former chauffeur for Mr. Wasserman, testified he saw the stolen furniture in the Wasserman dining room.

He said he had been offered $200 by Jacob Gilman if he would not testify in court.

Gilman also a witness, said Mackey had offered to leave town last Tuesday for $500. In court today Gilman said Mackey threatened to kill him if he mentioned this.

URGES SUBSIDY TO U. S. MARINE

Washington, April 27.—Disappearance of the American merchant marine from the seas unless a "generous" subsidy is provided was predicted today at the joint congressional hearing on the administration ship subsidy bill by Captain John F. Milliken, secretary-treasurer of the Neptune Association of Licensed Masters and Mates of Ocean and Coastwise Steam Vessels.

Captain Milliken reported that his association, composed of approximately 7,000 licensed masters and deck officers, favored early enactment of the legislation.

"We believe," he declared, "it is vitally necessary for our country to have an adequate merchant marine with legislative protection and government assistance to deliver the goods of our country in time of peace, to spread American doctrines and develop American business throughout the world and to assist our navy in time of war."

ADVANTAGES OF NEW BOULEVARD EXPLAINED

The completion of the Old Colony Boulevard and the construction of adjoining highways near Quincy will open up a new and broad avenue for traffic between Boston and the South Shore resorts, Chairman John N. TEXACO GASOLINE

THE VOLATILE GAS

(Volatility is the readiness with which gasoline gives up its power)

SHIFTING REDUCED

Good gasoline today—good gasoline tomorrow. Texaco Gasoline always. That's the way to treat your motor.

Buy only Texaco Gasoline, the volatile gas, and see what your motor really can do. See how easy it is to run along slowly and smoothly in city traffic—then a quick pick-up and away. You'll do less shifting with Texaco in the tank—and you'll get more mileage, and speed and lower up-keep. Stop at the Texaco pump.

Texaco Motor Oils are heavy-body lubricants and are distinguished by their clear, pale color. Light, medium, heavy and extra-heavy—they fit all cars and all conditions. You will find them wherever you see the Texaco red star.

45 COAL UNIONS ACCUSED AT TREASON TRIAL

State of West Virginia Charged They Financed March of Miners

By International News Service.

Charleston, W. Va., April 27.—Forty-five local unions and a so-called defence fund are named in an amended bill of particulars filed by the State in the treason trial of William Blizzard, alleged leader of the miners in their march to the Logan border last Summer, as having furnished the money to finance the march.

The bill was filed with Judge J. N. Wood in Circuit Court today in answer to a demand by the defence for a specific designation of the local unions accused in the indictment against Blizzard with having furnished funds to buy arms, ammunition and supplies for the march.

Blizzard is accused of having solicited funds from these unions, conspiring with them and urging them to contribute.

BISPHAM'S WIDOW FAILS TO BREAK WILL

New York, April 27.—Surrogate Foley today dismissed the action against the will of David Bispham, famous baritone, brought by his widow and daughter, ruling the plaintiffs had failed to prove Bispham had been unduly influenced by Mrs. Henrietta M. Ten Eyck. Mrs. Ten Eyck was left one-fourth of a $100,000 trust fund.

J. P. SULLIVAN OF POLICE FAME IS DEAD

James P. Sullivan, who as a Boston police captain was a storm centre in a department row a year ago, died today at his Summer house in Dennisport.

He was sixty-four years old and lived in Roxbury. He retired from the force last year.

Death was sudden. Two weeks ago he contracted a heavy cold. He thought he had shaken it off and got up from bed two days ago, resuming his daily hikes along the Cape beach. Yesterday he was forced back to bed. Death followed today.

Attending physicians said his heart had been affected.

Mr. Sullivan, who in the uniform of police captain looked not unlike John Philip Sousa, retired last Spring following the department row, when he charged he was demoted because he showed up "crooks in the department."

He had served thirty-five years and was known as a "real policeman."

"I know the police business backwards," he said at the time he discarded his uniform, "and that's more than a lot of those gentlemen at the head of things."

TRANSFER PROTESTED.

The "police jam," as politicians called it, caused a stir among downtown business men when Mr. Sullivan aired his views following a transfer from the City Hall Avenue Station to Headquarters, which he called a demotion.

A younger man was made his successor at the important City Hall Avenue Station.

"Camouflage," said Mr. Sullivan. "I will not stand for it."

He declared the issue was well known to downtown business men, and his transfer had come as the direct result of his activity in running down and preferring charges against members of the new force organized following the police strike.

Mr. Sullivan, once known as "the fair-haired boy" in the eyes of the late Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, charged there were "rotten" officers in the department "smothering their conscience and throwing smoke screens around the truth to stand in with the powers that be at headquarters."

STORIES OF THEFTS.

"I got in bad," he said, "when I announced at Police Headquarters that a thief had been appointed to the force and was assigned to my division; that, if he was to remain on the force, he had better be put on traffic, where his activities would be confined to directing persons across streets. I insisted that this policeman not be allowed to patrol a beat in the business section.

"They ignored me and immediately complaints came in of thefts from business houses. The investigation I instigated resulted in finding uniformed members of the new force pawing over goods in one of these houses.

"We actually caught a policeman-crook plying his old trade. I reported my investigation and imagine my surprise when I discovered that, as a result of the report, instead of the 'fair-haired boy' I had been, I became persona non grata at Headquarters."

Mr. Sullivan would have served thirty-five years on June 16, 1921. He retired in March.

He was appointed to the police force in 1886 and received his first promotion seven years later. A year after that he was made a lieutenant. His initial promotion followed his capture of four murderers. He was made a captain by Police Commissioner O'Meara and succeeded Captain Edward F. Gaskin as commander at the City Hall Avenue Station after Mr. Gaskin's death.

Following stepping out of the department, instead of waiting for three months, when he would have been retired by law, Mr. Sullivan went to Dennisport, where he was enjoying his "first prolonged vacation" when death came.

DIVORCED MAYO IN 1915, SAYS EX-WIFE

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 27.—Mrs. Florence Weeks Chamberlin, now the wife of a non-commissioned army officer at West Point, testified today at the trial of Virginius St. Julian Mayo, charged with bigamy, that she had not divorced him until 1915, although the prosecution contends that he went through another ceremony with Miss Wilhelmina Meyer of Newark, N. J., in 1904.

Mayo was indicted in 1919 on the accusation of his second wife.

Mrs. Chamberlin said she had not seen Mayo until today since 1906. She was married to him in Binghamton, N. Y., in 1896 and later had gone to Scranton, Pa. She said she had brought divorce proceedings in Pennsylvania after learning that he had married another woman.

"This is Mayo seated here, is it not?" asked Assistant District Attorney Winsor.

Mrs. Chamberlin looked calmly at the defendant and replied without hesitation:

"It is he."

5 INJURED IN ROXBURY SMASHUP

Franklin Denton, 35 years old, unfriended and without a home, decided in the depressing hours just before the dawn today to commit suicide.

So he smashed a window in the home conducted for the "down and out" at No. 92 Warren street, Roxbury, by the Volunteers of America. He crawled into the kitchen, closed all the windows and turned on the gas.

In swift succession the following things happened:

Somebody found him and sent in a call to the Dudley street station for an ambulance.

The ambulance responded and while the officers were working over him the car crashed into an Edison Electric Illuminating Company truck at Hunneman and Washington streets, Roxbury.

Five men were injured and taken to the City Hospital to be patched up after the collision.

Denton, the "cause of it all," will recover.

The injured were Policemen Richard Preston, Lemuel Doyle and Reardon, and Michael C. Rose and John X. Maynard, who were on the Edison truck.

In every case the men were able to go home after treatment.

Denton had been wandering about Roxbury for some time and had at various times stayed at the Volunteers' home in Warren street.

Mail Delayed When Policeman Holds Up Truck

War was on today between one lone Malden police officer and the United States government.

Sergeant Henry F. Berg refused to allow S. T. Wright, driver of a motor mail truck, to drive his car to make the 8:14 p. m. train for Boston, because, he charges, it was not properly lighted.

Today postoffice inspectors were investigating.

Sergeant Berg charges he has repeatedly warned Wright and other drivers to have mail trucks properly lighted.

"I'd do the same thing again tomorrow," Berg said today. "Lives mean more than letters."

Pensions Pay Monthly

Washington, April 27.—After July everybody on the government pension roll will be paid monthly instead of quarterly, the House agreeing with the Senate in the plan.

BONUS SPECIAL ON TRIUMPHAL JOURNEY

More Than Million Names Secured by Hearst Papers Leave for Capital

Elizabeth, N. J., April 27.—Started on its way to Washington by Mayor Hylan in New York, the motor truck carrying more than one million signatures to the soldiers' bonus sales tax petition, obtained by the Boston American and other Hearst newspapers, was accorded an enthusiastic reception in every New Jersey city and town through which it passed. Great crowds cheered the bonus special.

The Mayors of New York, Newark, Jersey City and Hoboken and the city clerk of Elizabeth, acting for the Mayor, have signed a special petition blank, which it is expected will bear the name of every municipal city executive en route when the bonus special reaches the capital.

HUSBAND DRAWS $5,300 AND VANISHES

Lawrence Mother and Three Small Children Are Left Destitute

Lawrence, April 27.—Drawing their savings of $5,300 from local banks, Francis Amaseuas, a mill worker, has vanished, leaving his wife and three small children destitute at their home, No. 68 Chestnut street. The wife has appealed to the police and to the Boston American to aid her in locating him.

Amaseus was employed at the Washington Mill, but was recently discharged. Until the strike, his wife worked at the Everett Mills.

The missing man is forty-two years old, five feet, six inches tall, of medium build and complexion, smooth face. When he left his home he wore a blue suit.

PAPER MAKERS FIRM FOR CUT IN MEN'S PAY

New York, April 27.—Only four days in which to negotiate a new wage contract before the present one expires remained when officers of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers met with newsprint manufacturers here today, in an effort to avert a threatened strike of 60,000 men.

The manufacturers' committee, headed by Floyd Carlisle, president of the St. Regis Paper Company, had prepared an ultimatum in reply to the craftsmen's refusal to accept their program of wage reduction.

"Accept or strike," was the indicated dictum of the manufacturers, according to Mr. Carlisle. They would not compromise a single point, he said, in their demands for a 10 per cent. cut for skilled men and elimination of time and a half for overtime, Sundays and holidays.

Common labor must be left out of the new agreement, the employers declared, their wages to be determined by the going rate for unskilled men in the localities where they are employed.

The forty delegates who are here in the interest of paper makers and their organized crafts employed in the industry today reiterated their refusal to accept the manufacturers' terms.

CAPTURE ESCAPED STATE FARM PRISONER

David J. Pickett, thirty-three years old, of Bridgewater, who escaped from the Bridgewater State Farm on March 24, was apprehended by officers of the East Dedham street station.

COX DELAYS NAMING EAST BOSTON JUDGE

Governor Cox delayed sending in a nomination for the associate judgeship for the East Boston district, to succeed the late Judge Joseph J. Murley, who died last week. There are several candidates for the position. Democrats claim the place should be given to one of their political faith.

The Governor has sent to the council the names of Warren C. Jewett of Worcester and Sylvester B. Ryan of Springfield, reappointments as members of the Health Council.

ACTIVE FRUIT GROWER HAS 103D BIRTHDAY

Raymond, N. H., April 27.—Ethan Sanborn, member of the 15th New Hampshire Volunteers in the Civil War, observed his 103d birthday today. Mr. Sanborn, who is actively engaged as a fruit grower, is in excellent health.

1 DYING, 3 HURT, IN ATTLEBORO COLLISION

Attleboro, April 27.—Four persons were injured, one of them seriously, when a large touring car and a light coupe collided at County and Sumner streets. Edward Griswold of Mansfield is reported dying at the Sturdy Memorial Hospital, with a fractured skull and internal injuries. Charles Cataloni of Pawtucket, driver of the touring car, was arrested, charged with intoxication.

"L" TRAIN VICTIM WAS NEW HAMPSHIRE MAN

The man killed by an elevated train at Charlestown, was identified as Thomas Sullivan of Rochester, N. H., by a son. The son, who gave his name as Daniel Sullivan, left no address, and said a daughter of the dead man would make certain identification today. He said his father at one time lived in Malden.

Police believe the victim committed suicide.

CUBAN SUGAR TRADE OUTLOOK PROMISING

Washington, April 27.—The outlook for solution of Cuba's sugar problem is more promising at present than for many months past, according to a survey by the Commerce Department. Reasonable estimates, the department said, will place the total available Cuban sugar for the year at 4,700,000 tons and solution of the problem rests on ability of the world market to absorb that quantity in addition to 2,000,000 tons of tariff-protected output.

Letters Written to Dr. Lewis Baker

Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions for the past 12 years to millions of people throughout the world, and if you are proper to say that millions have benefited by this service. Probably no physician living has come in contact with an equal number of afflicted mankind. Thoroughly conscientious advice and help are given in every case, and as a slight evidence of the esteem in which he is held, a few of the letters of gratitude that pour into his office in every mail are herewith given in brief extracts. In each case permission of the writer to publish the letter has been volunteered.

Mrs. Joe Rather, R. 3, Box 226, Edgemont Sta., East St. Louis, Ills., writes: "Your Health and Beauty Book came to me last week with your kind letter. I thank you most heartily for your offer of personal advice, if necessary, and please allow me to say that a friend in need is a friend indeed." This surely is true of you and your most valuable book which cannot be overestimated by mankind. I have read it through with great interest and pleasure, and I wonder at all the good advice and information it contains. It is all so simple and easy to understand. Everyone ought to possess such a treasure of a book."

Note: Send 2c stamp, name and address to Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, if you have never had a copy of his valuable book. He sends it free.

James Moore, Penn Hotel, Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "Have taken two cartons of Cadomene tablets, and can safely recommend them for nervousness and anemia. I was pretty well run-down when I started to use them, but they have put me back on my feet again, better than I expected. Will always keep them on hand, etc."

Mrs. J. Jones, 182 Park Ave., Revere, Boston Mass., writes: "I feel I must let you few lines to tell you how thankful I am for what Cadomene tablets and Reinwert tablets have done for me. If only women, or men, who suffer from weakness of any kind, "nerves," loss of blood, etc., could realize what benefit they would get from Cadomene, they would not wait another hour, but would get them right now. For women in charge of life they are a godsend, believe me. Yes, thank God, I am out of bed, sleeping, and can walk fine, and life is not the terrible burden it was. I am now doing my own washing, cooking and cleaning, and am glad to be able to do so."

Miss Sherk, 1259 Montgomery St., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I wish to say that I have used the Cadomene tablets for a long time with gratifying results. I have always worked in factories and mills. I became very nervous and run-down from overwork and worry. I was advised to try Cadomene tablets. Wonderful tonic. After taking several boxes I began to feel better, to sleep sounder, and the nervousness left me entirely. Shall be glad to recommend your remedies to all sufferers, etc."

Mrs. M. E. Mirriam, 19 Millbrook St., Worcester, Mass. writes: "I want to thank you for your interesting little book. I have used your wonderful Cadomene tablets for some time, with most wonderful results. I was very nervous, I had kidney trouble, and was always having attacks that go with it, and I found no relief until I used your medicine. I think it has no equal, and recommend it to all my friends, etc."

Elizabeth Harper, 2617 Howe St., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I find both the cough medicine, Mentho-Laxene, and the rheumatism medicine are not only wonderful, but act more quickly than any I have ever tried. Will be glad to have you use my name as one perfectly satisfied with results obtained."

Mrs. Andrew Nilson, 6 Sprague St., Wilmerding, Pa., writes: "I surely have to say the Reinwert tablets are fine. I had irritation of the bladder, my back hurt and a very uncomfortable feeling in the bladder—a burning that set the nerves wild. The first dose helped me, as it did my sister who had inflammation of the bladder with pus. She took them after she had been using a doctor's medicine and got relief at once. We always intend to keep a box handy. Send the 'Health and Beauty Book.'"

Edwin G. Engler, 1859 Hodiamont St., St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I wish to state I have taken the Cadomene tablets and had the best results. I have no trouble in sleeping, and my nerves again are strong. I am a musician, and play in a band. I have very trying hours, but believe I am able to cope with the same good results. I am now built up in a nervous, run-down state and are now perfectly recovered."

Mr. J. P. Bryant, Irving, Tex., writes: "I will now thank you for the book you sent some weeks ago. I was waiting for results from your medicine, and I certainly got the best results. I will say that Cadomene tablets is the best medicine I ever found. It has made a new man of me. I was just about at my journey's end with despondency and ill-health, but now I am O. K., etc."

K. C. HEAD TIPS LADY ASTOR ON 'DEPORTMENT'

Gives Her Example of Jack Dempsey, Who Talks on "His Own Affairs"

New York, April 27.—Lady Astor might well take a lesson in the proper deportment for celebrities visiting foreign countries, from Jack Dempsey, said Supreme Knight Flaherty, of the Knights of Columbus, at the dinner of Regina Council, in the Hotel Astor. He said:

"Dempsey confines his remarks to his own affairs.

"Dempsey has the reputation of finishing fights; Lady Astor now has the unwelcome repute of starting them.

"She must know that religion has nothing whatever to do with civic rights in these United States, although England sees fit to maintain certain religious disabilities, which can never, so long as our Constitution endures, be imposed on American citizenship."

2-Year-Old in Debut as Toe Dancer Is "Belle of Ball"

Little Miss Virginia O'Donnell was unanimously voted the belle of the "danse sale" in Pere Marquette Hall, South Boston, last night. She is two years old, and made her first public appearance as a toe dancer. The sale was under the direction of Miss Lillian T. Kearney.

FIVE KILLED IN BATTLES IN IRELAND

London, April 27 (By International News Service).—Three were killed today in a battle which occurred at Dunmanway, County Cork, when armed bands attacked the town.

The first outbreaks of violence that had been considered inevitable along the Ulster border, following breaking of negotiations between Northern and Southern Ireland, were reported today. Incendiaries burned Hibernian Hall at Lisles, and a business building and dwelling house at Anatong in County Down.

Two Killed, Six Hurt in Factional Battle

Mullingar, Ireland, April 27 (By the Associated Press).—Fighting broke out today between the regular and irregular Irish Republican army forces stationed here in anticipation of Eamon De Valera's anti-treaty meeting on Saturday.

The hostilities continued for two hours, both sides using rifles and machine guns. Two were killed, and six are believed wounded.

London, April 27 (By the Associated Press).—Troops of the provisional Free State government gained control of the town of Mullingar, following this morning's fighting, says a dispatch from Belfast. An armored car manned by regulars is patrolling the streets.

Belfast Murder List Reaches 97

Belfast, April 27 (By International News Service).—There have been ninety-seven murders in Belfast since February, fifty-seven attempted massacres, 150 cases of house breaking; 330 robberies, Lord Chief Justice Moore announced today in opening the new court sessions. He declared that 800 criminals were responsible for this reign of disorder.

Al Clonmel Irregulars of Republican factions of the Free State army took over tax collection in the district and intimidated affairs.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Smart Set Sponsors "Little Women" for Charity

By BETTY ALDEN.

A HOST of matrons prominent in the social world are sponsoring the production of "Little Women," to be given next Saturday afternoon in Jordan Hall. The affair is for the benefit of the Boston North End Mission, which is conducting a campaign for funds this week.

A group of girls drawn from the ranks of the smart set are to serve as ushers, while Mrs. Frederick Stegner of Bay State road, and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft of Beacon street, are in charge of the candy sale, which will be carried on between the acts. Mrs. George Loring Tobey, Jr., is in charge of the tickets, which are now on sale at Herrick's.

Mrs. George F. D. Paine of Bay State road is the leading spirit for Saturday's presentation, and a number of prominent names adorn the patronesses list, so that a social as well as financial success is assured.

Apropos of the campaign which the mission is carrying on just now—the latter is being promoted in rather a novel manner. Each person contributing to the fund receives a charity bond with a number, to which is added the announcement that the "value of the bond is unlimited, as its price is the interest and friendship of the holder in carrying on the splendid work of child rescue, which the Boston North End Mission has done so ably for so many years."

Preceding the performance of "Little Women" on Saturday there will be shown a moving picture depicting the actual everyday life of the children now at the Mt. Hope Home on Southbourne road, Forest Hills, one branch of the North End Mission's work.

AMONG the very many dinners which will precede the smart costume ball on Friday will be the one to which Francis Wright Fabyan, Jr., has invited a host of his young friends. The dinner is to be held at the home of Mr. Fabyan's parents, at No. 146 Commonwealth avenue.

Among those who will be included in the company is Miss Olivia James, older daughter of the Edward H. Jameses of Mt. Vernon street. Miss James is receiving no end of praise for her cleverness in designing the scenery for "Now and Then," the musical play being presented this week by the Vincent Club. Miss James, who is specializing at the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts, is an artist of no mean ability, and her many friends expect that she will do some splendid work in this line. Certainly the settings used in "Now and Then" are most attractive.

Speaking of the James girls, I hear that the younger daughter, Mary James, is following more or less in the footsteps of her sister, for she is now taking drawing lessons at the Museum. At present she is devoting herself to ancient casts, and whether or no she will show herself to be as talented as Olivia, remains to be seen. At least, she has no end of interest and enthusiasm for her work, which means a good deal.

Mary James, it will be remembered, was introduced to society last Fall at a tea given for her by her uncle, Grafton Cushing, who, it will be remembered, played the fairy "godfather" when Olivia made her presentation two years ago.

THE coterie of attractive girls whose services have been enlisted as ushers for the Vincent show this week, are doing their "bit" to make "Now and Then" run smoothly. Their work may not be as spectacular as those who comprise the cast, but it is every bit as essential.

Miss Anne Bowen of Beacon street is in charge of the group of ushers. The latter include the Misses Rosamond Johnson, Gertrude Baker, Louisa Bazeley, Edith Blanchard, Gertrude Bradlee, Alice Bremer, Anne Cabot, Katherine Coolidge, Priscilla Crane, Lucy Flake, Ruth Graves, Barbara Hall, Dorothy King, Alice Lee, Isabel Porter, Penelope Potter, Barbara Reynolds, Barbara Rice, Susan B. Sturgis, Katherine Thomas, Linda Wellington, Marion Winslow, Eleanora and Margaret Winslow, Mrs. Franklin Nichols and Mrs. Richard M. Russell.

Rosamond Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson of Commonwealth avenue, was also among the girls ushering at "Why Not," Adelaide Whitman's clever operetta produced recently at the Opera House for charity.

CHELSEA STREET BRIDGE CONTRACT AWARDED

The largest contract in the present administration of Mayor Curley has been awarded to Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation of No. 6 Beacon street for the erection and completion of the Chelsea street bridge, Charlestown, at $521,830. They were the lowest bidders out of a field of five. The next large contract to be awarded soon will be that for the South Boston Strandway development, which calls for an expenditure of more than $700,000.

STATE DEMOCRATS TO GET TOGETHER SATURDAY

Mayor Edward W. Quinn, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the Democratic get-together luncheon to be held at the Copley-Plaza next Saturday, has gone to Washington to complete arrangements for speakers from outside the State.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT R. WHITTIER of Commonwealth avenue have concluded their stay at Hot Springs, Va., and are on their way North. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sprague, who accompanied Henry Guild of Beacon street and Nahant on his trip South, are also returning from Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sohier, Jr. (Elaine Denegre) of Boston have concluded their sojourn at White Sulphur Springs and are now in Washington, where they are the guests of Mrs. Sohier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Denegre. The latter are prominent members of the Summer colony on the North Shore, where they have a large estate at Manchester.

Miss Heloise Meyer, who has a host of connections in Boston, is now in New York, awaiting the arrival of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham, who are arriving this week from California.

Vincent Astor is the first to open the yachting season at Newport this year, having arrived at the famous Rhode Island watering place on his steam yacht Nourmahal early this week. Though it is a bit early for yachting, those on board enjoyed their cruise thoroughly. Mr. Astor is sailing his yacht eastward for new adventures.

CONVICTS REVOLT AT CALCUTTA

Calcutta, April 27 (By the Associated Press).—Discontent over alleged favored treatment of political prisoners is believed to have been at the bottom of yesterday's convict revolt in the jail here, when a break for the gates was made by about 200 of the men, several of whom were killed when fired upon by the guards. A few of the prisoners succeeded in escaping over the walls.

The discontent came to a head when one of the wardens, it is alleged, struck a Mohammedan prisoner for insubordination. The other convicts refused to attend meals, and ultimately armed themselves with sticks and sledgehammers and attacked the wardens. One group attempted to rush the gates while others set fire to the jute shade and oil tanks. The wardens opened fire, but the mutineers were not completely subdued and dispersed until the arrival of the military.

STOREY TO SPEAK AT CAPITAL

Washington, April 27.—The National Civil Service Reform League will hold a mass meeting here tonight in the interest of the "maintenance of the merit system in the civil service."

The speakers, it is announced, will include Moorfield Storey of Boston, William Dudley Foulke, former president of the Civil Service Commission; First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Preceding the mass meeting a conference will be held between officials of the league and civil service workers at which will be discussed policies to be used at the mass meeting.

BARGE ASHORE IN LOWER HARBOR

The coal barge Harasecket of the Howard Line broke adrift from the tug Toller during the fifty-mile northerly gale today while in President Roads and before she could be caught again had run hard aground on the northeasterly end of Long Island.

The Toller attempted to go to her assistance, but became entangled in the lines of the other tows and was obliged to give it up.

Other boats, including the quarantine tug Vigilant, tried to pull the barge off, but choppy seas prevented. A man and a woman believed to be the captaion and his wife are the sole occupants aboard the barge, which is in no danger of foundering.

Several other attempts were made by the Toller to pull the barge off but after the snapping of several hawsers the attempts were given up.

The Harasecket was on her way to several wooden ships of the United States Shipping Board moored in President Roads whose machinery was to have been removed to other points.

GENOA PARLEY TO GIVE RUSSIA WARNING

Soviet to Be Told Exact Terms on Which Allies Will Make Recognition

Paris, April 27 (By International News Service).—A possibility that France may refuse to attend the proposed conference at Genoa of nations signing the Versailles treaty developed at a council of ministers session today.

By International News Service.

Genoa, April 27—Satisfactory progress in drafting the note which will be addressed to Russia by the Allies was made today, according to an official announcement made at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The note which probably will be delivered tomorrow, will state exactly how far the Allies are prepared to go in conditions under which the Soviet government will be recognized.

It will contain an admonition to the effect that the Genoa Conference cannot continue in session indefinitely.

This last clause constitutes a tactful warning to the Soviet against further time-consuming haggling, but does not constitute the ultimatum which it was reported France would demand.

The note will summarize the pour parlers to date and request definite answers on points of controversy.

These facts were contained in an official announcement which indicated a desire for a Russian reply which would permit a plenary sitting on Monday.

Some anxiety was evidenced among the delegates because up to noon no reply had come from Poincare regarding the invitation to the proposed Genoa meeting of signatories of the Versailles Treaty to consider sanctions against Germany.

Premier Lloyd George may ask that sessions of the economic conference beginning Monday be open "with a view to giving the world clear understanding of the responsibility for obstructionist inaction."

Speaking to newspaper men, Lloyd George sounded a warning against "hungry Russia and angry Germany wreaking vengeance." Because of his conviction the Russian tangle cannot now be solved and that this problem and that of Germany threaten another world war "within his lifetime," the English Prime Minister today began to concentrate all his forces on his proposed peace pact. For it he is preparing to make one of the greatest fights of his life.

MILL MEN BACK 'COMPETITORS,' SAYS McMAHON

By International News Service.

Lawrence, April 27.—Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers, addressing a gathering of textile strikers on Lawrence Common, today answered the arguments offered by Edwin Farnham Greene, treasurer of the Pacific Mills, who sought to justify wage reductions announced by the cotton mills.

McMahon charged the mill men considered profits a "real" problem, but considered working conditions a "theoretical social question." He said the Pacific Mills in the year 1920 paid stockholders dividends of 32.7 per cent. on the par value of their stock.

McMahon pointed out that the finer grades of cotton cloth are manufactured in the North and not in the South. He accused the mill men of wanting profits from Southern child labor, and also charged Northern capitalists are encouraging the Southern competition they complain of.

The union leader mentioned the proposed enlargment of the mill of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company at Somersworth, N. H., at a cost of $1,500,000, as evidence that Northern cotton manufacture was not menaced by the South.

"Except as New England textile manufacturers take South their skill, designing, weaving, finishing and selling cloth, New England's pre-eminence and profits in this industry are safe," said McMahon.

URGES GOVERNMENT CONTROL FOR RADIO

Washington, April 27.—Regulation and control of radio communication by the government was advocated by the national conference of radio telephony in a report made public today. The conference recommended that the Secretary of Commerce should have authority for the control of ifirst, the establishment of all radio transmitting stations except amateur, experimental and government statigns and second, the operation of non governmental radio transmitting stations.

WORLD NEEDS GRANT SPIRIT, SAYS HARDING

"Magnanimity and Doggedness Will Solve Problems of Today"

By the Associated Press.

Point Pleasant, O., April 27.—The world needs something of the spirit of General Grant, President Harding declared today in an address at exercises commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the birth here of the great military leader.

"I sometimes wonder," the President said, "if the magnanimity of Grant, the dogged, persistent, unalterable Grant in warfare—the unconditional surrender Grant—would not be helpful in the world today. The great world struggles, which we might reasonably designate the civil war of western civilization, and in which we so credibly and helpfully participated, left peoples and nations prostrate, hardly knowing which way to turn for restoration.

"I cannot help but believe that something of the spirit with which Grant welcomed victory, something of his eagerness to return to peaceful ways, would have speeded the turn to prosperity and happiness, without which there can be no abiding peace.

"We know his cherishment of peace, intensified by his intimate knowledge of the horrors of war. I can well believe he would have approved of all the republic has so recently done in joining other nations in lifting the burdens of armament and promoting understandings which make war less likely. I know he would have approved, because we surrendered no independence, we gave up none of nationality for which we fought, but we have furthered the assurances of peace, which was the supreme yearning of his brave heart.

FAME IS SECURE.

"It is fifty-seven years since Grant garlanded victory with magnanimity. It is thirty-seven years since he laid down the wearied autobiographer's pen and made his one and only surrender. His fame is secure. The republic has not forgotten and will not forget.

"What of the republic itself? It will not be unseemly to say that American example and American conception of justice and liberty since then have influenced the world little less significantly than Grant's service to the union shaped the course of our land.

"A score of new republics have unfurled their flags and democracy has opened new avenues of liberty and made justice more secure. Civilization meanwhile has made such advances that there has seemed a Divinity pointing the way.

"And yet that very civilization, more advancing than entrenched, was threatened by the World War, and in war's aftermath established order has been associated and revolution has threatened throughout the world. In our own land the enemies within have been more threatening than these without. Greed and anarchy have menaced, but a calm survey gives every reassurance. Twenty centuries of modern civilization could not have been builded on foundations which are false.

PROGRESS WILL CONTINUE.

"The sectionalism of Grant's and Lee's time has been effaced, and the geographical divisions which hindered the formation of the Union and later threatened its disruption have given way to the far less menacing divisions which have challenged all civilization, and which make the ferment out of which will progress comes, we are today incontestible one people, with a common purpose, universal pride, nation-wide confidence, and one flag.

"The contentions which beset us are not ours alone, they are the irritants to civilization throughout the world. They are not to be ignored, but they have never halted the human procession and will not hinder the progress of this firmly founded Republic.

"Grant was himself the supreme example of American opportunity. Standing before his humble birthplace, amid the surroundings of his obscure boyhood life, one doubts if three-quarters of a century ago anyone should have sought here for the military chieftain of a century.

"We have not a few, even today, who think small-town vision to be pitifully circumscribed. And yet this little Clermont County furnished in Ulysses S. Grant and Henry T. Corbin two of the thirteen lieutenant-generals who have been commissioned in all our history.

WENT NORMAL WAY.

"It is inconceivable that men are prejudiced in their attitude towards great problems by their own experiences—more by their disappointments than their successes.

Grant's own experience in life might have led a less deliberate character to welcome an upheaval, or disunion, or any reversal to the government.

"But this silent man did not appraise his country by the scale of his own misfortunes. He had yearned for no star, dreamed of no destiny. He merely went the normal way, face ever forward. Ready to quicken his step when opportunity called, for responsibility summoned."

Coolidge Speaks at Capital Exercises

Washington, April 27.—Thousands of Federal employes honored the memory of General Ulysses S. Grant today at the dedication of the bronze memorial in the Botanic Gardens on the centenary of the birth of the great Union soldier and President. Following a parade, Vice-President Coolidge and Secretary Weeks were on the program for the principal addresses.

$12,000 Fire at Lee

Lee, Mass., April 27.—Fire today damaged C. W. Baldwin's grain and feed mill, the loss being $10,100. The Knox Lumber Company's loss on lumber was $2,000. Edward Kronich's auto truck was burned.

Knickers and Snickers

New York, April 27.—Knickers and snickers are so intimately related that many an estimable person who cannot take his mind off his legs has yet to be persuaded to adopt "shorts" for knockabout, country and field.

The original cut of knickers was too full and baggy to look trim and graceful. Then followed the lean knicker, patterned after cavalry breeches. This was prone to make one's legs appear spindly.

At last, knickers have been developed into really smart garments, as shown alongside. The waistline is well drawn in and the cloth is kept scant over the hips, tapering into broadness below and terminating in a full-draped, but not baggy, effect at the knee.

Knickers may be fastened with either buckles or buttons, though buttons are preferable, since they cannot rust or rip the fabric.

The whole trick in cutting knickers is to have them look snug and close-fitting, while really being loose and comfortable. Then, simply put them on and put yourself out of your mind.

For an Occasional Flyer—The Wing

You may recall the story of the man, who, chancing upon an old-time acquaintance, was instantly hailed by name. "How is it," inquired the first man, "that you remembered me even though we have not met in fifteen years?" Retorted the acquaintance, slyly, "Oh! I recognized you by your shirt."

The feeling of being well dressed can only be enjoyed by those who possess sufficient clothes to luxuriate in the freshness and fascination of frequent changes.

This applies especially to collars and hats which cost relatively little, yet which transform a man's appearance more than anything else.

The wing collar is not comfortable and becoming to every neck, but for those to whom it is comfortable and becoming it is a most agreeable change from the conventional double-band forms which represent the same old, tame old thing.

That type of wing which is smartest this season is sketched alongside. It is of fairish height, with straight, bold, overlapping tabs and the bowknot tie, as shown, pairs off best with it.

Washable military gloves or chamois gloves with open knuckles and perforated palms are renewing their vogue for the links in Spring time.

NOTE—Questions concerning Correct Dress for Men will be answered by Alfred Stephen Bryan, if addressed to him in care of this newspaper. To insure a reply, a stamped envelope must be enclosed.

WAR VETERANS OBSERVE GRANT DAY HERE

Grant Day, marking the 100th anniversary of the birth of General Ulysses S. Grant, was observed today throughout New England.

Civil War and World War veterans united everywhere in paying tribute to the memory of the famous war chief and former President.

Officers and enlisted men of the First Corps Area were given a holiday in a general order issued by Major-General Clarence R. Edwards. Exercises were held at all army posts.

Appropriate ceremonies also were held by Grand Army and Legion posts. The presidential salute of twenty-one guns was fired at the harbor forts at 10 a. m.

The big event scheduled for the day was the "Grant Night" dinner of the Middlesex Club at the Hotel Somerset tonight. The speakers include Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; Congressman Frank L. Greene of Vermont and Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, D.D., rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Newton Centre.

All flags on public and private buildings were displayed in honor of the Civil War leader.

PRODUCERS SEEK NEW OIL FIELDS IN MEXICO

Mexico City, April 27.—Some of the mystery surrounding the conference here between the big American Oil producers and officials of the Obregon government was cleared away today. It was disclosed that the principal negotiations are concerned with exploitation of new fields by the American interests rather than over present conditions in the industry. The producers are said to fear the exhaustion of present fields in from ten to twenty years and are seeking new territories.

URGE STATE TO ACCEPT HUTCHINSON STATUTE

The Art Commission recommends the acceptance by the General Court of the bronze statue of Anne Hutchinson, presented to the State by the Anne Hutchinson Memorial Association and the General Federation of Women's Club of Massachusetts. The statue was executed by Cyrus E. Dallin. The proposed site is in front of the westerly wing of the State House.

BRITISH 'SLEW 36,000,000' IN 50 YEARS

Charges that through exorbitant taxation which reduced the populace to abject poverty the British government in India has killed 36,000,000 persons in the last fifty years were made by speakers at a meeting in the English High School.

The meeting, under the auspices of the Indian Relief Committee, was to stimulate interest in the fast day to be held May 13 in aid of Indian relief work.

James K. Arlikatti, recently returned from India; A. M. Coleman, Whitfield Tuck, Sailendra N. Ghose and Haridas Ghayden were the speakers. Arthur T. Joyce presided.

WORCESTER HONORS 104TH INF. VETERANS

Worcester, April 27.—This city today paid homage to the 104th Infantry of the 26th Division, decorated by the French Government for valor in the World War. The program included a review of the regiment, an entertainment and banquet. Major-General and Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards were special guests. Members of the regiment from all parts of New England were present. They were officially welcomed by Mayor Sullivan. Today was the anniversary of Appremon Day.

Boy Missing Two Weeks; American's Aid Is Asked

Parents of Peter Mileske, thirteen years old, of Hambelt place, South Boston, today asked the American to assist in finding him. The boy disappeared from home two weeks ago. He had always been a home loving lad and attendant of the public schools. When he disappeared he wore a gray overcoat, red sweater and blue suit. He was of medium height and weight.

150 IRISH DELEGATES GOING TO WASHINGTON

Final plans for sending 150 delegates to the national convention of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic were made at a meeting of the State directorate of the Massachusetts branch of that organization. The delegates will leave for Washington, where the convention is to be held on May 3. Hon. Austin Stack and Rev. Michael O'Flanagan, who will appear at the convention, are in Boston this week for a series of speeches.

3 BOSTON GIRLS HIT BY AUTOS; ONE DYING

Two girls and a child were hurt in automobile accidents in various parts of Boston.

Miss Jessie McLeod, aged twenty-six, No. 287 Commonwealth avenue, was struck by an automobile driven by Police Sergeant Harry T. Grace of Division 3 while leaving the Back Bay station. She is reported dying at the City Hospital with internal injuries.

Four-year-old Margaret Ramsey of No. 9 Hallam street, Dorchester, was hit by a machine while walking on George street. She is in the City Hospital with a concussion of the brain.

Miss Elaine Burke, aged twenty-three, of No. 424 Massachusetts avenue, was slightly cut about the head when the machine in which she was riding, driven by William R. Howard of No. 428 Massachusetts avenue, collided with the machine of Joseph Y. Moore of No. 8 Holborn Park, Roxbury, at Massachusetts avenue and St. Botolph street. Other occupants of the machines were unhurt.

WHAT KIND OF SOAP FOR A WASHING MACHINE

I always think of soap as the partner of a washer. Some soaps are lazy partners, others do their full share of the work.

Soaps that do not dissolve completely, that give light, frothy suds without substance, make a washing machine do more than its share of the work.

Rinso, the new kind of soap, helps the washer do its best work. Every grain is so pure and perfectly balanced that it loosens all the dirt. It prepares the way for the efficient operation of the machine. When you use Rinso you don't have to rub at all.

Whether they have a washing machine or not, women the country over are using Rinso in place of bar soap at every step of the family wash.

Suppose YOU were Starving

Would you let any accident of race or religion prevent you from accepting food, no matter by whom offered?

Emergency relief administered without regard to race or religion.

The Jews of Greater Boston are struggling to raise their share of the $14,000,000 national fund for war sufferers in Europe—Jewish and others.

Men and women of all faiths are invited to contribute to this grand effort to save millions from untold wretchedness—even starvation.

Let your Shoe Repairman see that you appreciate his care for you

NEXT time you go to your shoe repairman for rubber heels tell him you want U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels.

The shoe repairman is the man who takes the responsibility for giving you quality in all shoe repair work.

Much of his care for you doesn't show. Selection of leather, of linings, of findings.

But here, in the U. S. Spring-Step Heel, is the expression of one of his quality ideals that you can see—and you can show your appreciation in so many words.

PATRIOT AND SHOEMAKER

Neal Dow—1804-97

From the shoemaker's craft have come men prominent in peace and war. Neal Dow gained prominence both like Whittier, a fellow, New England shoemaker, he was reared a Quaker. But the Civil War made him a fighter. He raised a regiment and was its colonel. Lincoln made him a general.

After the War, Dow's outstanding ability made him a leader in political movements.

U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels are scientific rubber heels.

They are made by the United States Rubber Company, the oldest and largest rubber organization in the world.

A company that grows more of its own rubber than any other manufacturer in this country.

A company that knows rubber. That has technical laboratories where every phase of the rubber problem, for every practical use, is worked out in the light of scientific knowledge.

U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels cost you no more than the ordinary kind.

Test them in any way you like. Appearance. Wear. Comfort on the foot.

Small wonder that responsible shoe repairmen everywhere use U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels as a matter of responsible service to their customers.

The only company in this country that grows its own rubber in any considerable quantity.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about two minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed. The cashier emptied the counter till of $1,850 and handed the money over. By direction of the "bandit," the cashier and his assistant retreated to the vault. Keaton made a futile effort to shut the heavy door on them.

The arrival of several men alarmed Keaton, and pocketing his loot he fled down the railroad tracks, outdistancing his pursuers [illegible]

BROADCASTING STATIONS ON INCREASE

The United States has [illegible] casting stations [illegible] the number of licenses [illegible] the Department of Commerce.

There are more than [illegible] applications for broadcasting licenses awaiting disposition, and more are constantly pouring in. Only temporary licenses are being issued pending definite allotment of radio regulations.

Keeping a Child's Hair Beautiful

What a Mother Can Do to Keep Her Child's Hair Healthy—Fine, Soft and Silky—Bright, Fresh-Looking and Luxuriant.

The beauty of your child's hair depends upon the care you give it.

Shampooing it properly is always the most important thing.

It is the shampooing which brings out the real life and lustre, [illegible] and makes the hair soft, fresh and luxuriant.

When your child's hair is dry, dull and heavy, lifeless, stiff and gummy, and the strands cling together, and it feels harsh and disagreeable to the touch, it is because the hair has not been shampooed properly.

When the hair has been shampooed properly, and is thoroughly clean, it will be glossy, smooth and bright, delightfully fresh-looking, soft and silky.

While children's hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating mothers, everywhere, now use Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and it does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

If you want to see how really beautiful you can make your child's hair look, just follow this simple method.

A Simple, Easy Method

FIRST, put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water. Then wet the hair and scalp with clear warm water. Pour the Mulsified evenly over the hair and rub it thoroughly all over the scalp and throughout the entire length, down to the ends of the hair.

Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather. This should be rubbed in thoroughly and briskly with the finger tips, so as to loosen the dandruff and small particles of dust and dirt that stick to the scalp.

After rubbing in the rich, creamy Mulsified lather, rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly—always using clear, fresh, warm water.

Then use another application of Mulsified, again working up a lather and rubbing it in briskly as before.

You can easily tell when the hair is perfectly clean, for it will be soft and silky in the water.

Rinse the Hair Thoroughly

THIS is very important. After the final washing, the hair and scalp should be rinsed in at least two changes of good warm water and followed with a rinsing in cool water.

After a Mulsified shampoo you will find the hair will dry quickly and evenly and have the appearance of being thicker and heavier than it is.

If you want your child to always be remembered for its beautiful, well-kept hair, make it a rule to set a certain day each week for a Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This regular weekly shampooing will keep the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to manage, and it will be noticed and admired by everyone.

You can get Mulsified at any drug store [illegible]

Better get your new bathing suits out, Boston girls! She made the 100 yards back stroke in 1:23 4-5, representing the Ohio State University.

A HOUSE OF GLASS! It took Abraham Schayer of Cincinnati just twelve years of patient labor to make this mosaic, comprising 4,000 pieces of glass. On the left are the Ten Commandments in gl-ss, surrounded by many interesting biblical incidents.

"WE ARE ACTORS!" Miss Dorothy P. Miner of Clark road, Brookline, who will play a leading part in "Commander Walk," to be given by the Parish Players in Whitney Hall, Brookline, May 2. (Photo by Bachrach.)

YOU CAN'T KEEP A GOOD MAN DOWN! T. C. Pratt, captain of the Harvard lacrosse, which met defeat at the hands of Oxford, wants revenge! Watch the Crimson boys the next time they play, he says. Play Cornell May 8.

HARRY HEIGH EUSTACE, "Shoe Eustace," and Africa's great hunter, is in America and ready to descend on Boston with stories of daring tales of jungle hunts. Made a fortune in elephant tusks. (Keystone.)

THIS IS OVER HER HEAD — But She Understands It's a Snappy Hat! The modish chapeau is fashioned of blue taffeta with bands of grey felt cut in strips, with a fancy edge. (Underwood.)

BARON HOLGER ROSENKRANTZ, who arrived with his mother in the steering of the S. S. Resolute, is coming to New England to study farming. Made trip for experience. (International News Reel.)

OH, THE DANCE THEY DID, ETC.! Anna Friendson, left, of Roxbury, and Gertrude Hirshon of Dorchester didn't call out the reserve squad with their Turkish costumes at the Winthrop Casino masquerade, but they did call forth a lot of praise. They designed the garments themselves.

GREAT SNAKES! Miss Evins Doty of the Reptile Study Society captured this big fellow while out on a "study party" in Wanghaw Mountains, N. J., and thought he looked pretty enough for her hat. (Wide World.)

THEY MAY WEAR 'EM HIGHER IN HAWAII, But They Wear 'Em Cuter in New England! Miss Peggy Warren of No. 26 Park Way, Winchester, not only takes the cake today, but she also takes an award of $5 as a smart knickerbocker girl. Enter now. Address Pictorial Editor, Boston American.

683 silk lined suits

made by

Hart Schaffner & Marx

suits identical to those we've been selling at $50, $55 and $60.

Single and double-breasted models which correctly express what is good style for Spring. Underlying the fine looks of these suits is the finest qualities of low-toned soft worsteds and rich Glenurquhart overplaids.

Nothing handsomer—nothing more practical—nothing so necessary—they're the year-round suits. The fine silk half or full linings give a sense of real luxuriousness.

Look at these NIFTIES, today's winners:

"By whom was the first telephone number given?"

"Adam, when he said: 'I fell' (I ate one too)."

Elizabeth Corcoran, 30 Saratoga avenue, Chicopee.

"Who was the richest catcher in the National League?"

Leo McGonagle, No. 31 Allston street, Charlestown.

"Why do you call a fast automobile driver a scorcher?"

Cecil F. Olson, Shell Crest Farm, Holliston.

NIFTY NIFTIES all of them.

The Nifty Editor sure likes 'em snappy.

It starts the day right when you get them like the above.

But listen, lads, and you too brother you can all write NIFTIES like these. Try it. Ship them in Rush 'em in. Get them in anyway at all but write some. Be a nifty NIFTY fan. Remember a Nifty a day drives the ills away and if a writer was a dollar.

Says One Girl Called Her Curls the Gatun Locks Because She Bought Them in Panama

Winter is nearly over, and the girls are busy deciding whether they're going to be blondes or brunettes for the Summer.

This is a trying time of year for sisters. They're fighting as to whether to turn it in to be blonde or stained.

One of them decides to dye her hair the original shade, but she's changed it so often she can't remember what the original shade was.

The other one doesn't know whether to bob it, let it grow, dye it, or leave it as it is.

She wants to go to Atlantic City for the Summer, but she's afraid. She was there last year, but forgets whether she was light or dark.

The averaged woman doesn't feel with her hair as it is. Why bother with it at night when you can buy bobbed curls in any beauty parlor.

A girl used to let her hair hang over her shoulders. Now she lets it hang over her dresser.

She used to shampoo it every week or so. But now she winds it in and has it washed.

One girl called her curls the Gatun Locks because she bought them in Panama.

The same girl was so busy last [illegible] and have hats tried on it.

If the hat fitted the hair it was all right, because she knew the hair fitted her head.

Another bird was married to a brunette and his wife found a blonde hair on his coat. She was sure it wasn't hers until he told her he was wearing last year's suit.

You can be married to a flaming red head and some home some night and find that a hair dresser has put the fire out.

Sonora Takes The Lead In Price Reductions

With the substantial reduction of price which went into effect April 1st on many Sonora models regardless of astonishing improved tone quality, Sonora becomes the first of the leading phonograph manufacturers to bring down prices to present-day levels.

This reduction of prices—the second which Sonora has announced within the last few months—is significant of Sonora's stability, financial strength and far-sightedness in serving the public.

Coincident with this announcement is the further assurance that there will be no other price change this year.

The Right of Way to Tire Leadership

A year or so ago, the American public placed the leadership of the tire business in the hands of the men who make U. S. Royal Cords

THE first Royal Cord Tires were made and sold in 1916.

No cut-and-dried story could possibly account for their position of command today—earned in a short six years.

It mostly comes down to the car-owner as an out and out human being. Forget him as a mere tire customer and consider him as a personality. With an inborn instinct for quality. With a pride in demonstrating his quality beliefs.

How many tire manufacturers, would you say, have even guessed that American car-owners were shifting so fast to better tires!

For every low-grade tire made there is arising some motorist with a fine, human indifference for it.

He and his kind have become out and out loyalists of Royal Cord Tires—as representing the highest expression of their demands.

Multiply this man by a million or more. Then sit down and weigh his tremendous deciding influence.

Their spirit of leadership is the spirit of constancy—faithfulness—a simple, understandable policy.

U. S. Royal Cords have come to be the measure of value of all automobile tires.

The makers of United States Tires urge upon everybody—manufacturer and dealer alike—a new kind of competition.

Let us compete for more and more public confidence.

Let us compete for higher and higher quality.

Let us compete for still more dependable public service.

AROUND THE FAIRWAY AT FLAGG TAVERN

By FRED O. THAYER

Instructor Hayward has been tuning up four members, Mr. and Mrs. Wolff and Mr. and Mrs. Stover, for a spky foursome some time in the near future.

Among those who are developing good form and show promise as golfers are Tommy Murray, Fred Howe, Miss Janet Hollander, A. E. Rust, Charles Temple, former state trap shooter, H. C. Stockdale, of wool trade fame, Lloyd Freeman and Elliott Backneil of Newton, who just established the record of 18 for the five holes now playable.

• • •

About fifty were out at the links in Weston on the holiday and an equal number on Saturday and Sunday. Pretty good showing for a club which is now only a one-horser.

The club announces that when the nine are complete that they will immediately affiliate with the M. G. A. Get in now. The State Green committee might help out quite a bit.

Fred Howe of the Newton Gas Light Company is a frequent attendant. Mr. and Mrs. Wolff played forty holes on the holiday. Playing with the Coles recently, Miss Lyons played the difficult seventh hole in four strokes. Good for a woman—[illegible] before [illegible]

It should make a good golf course of the old-fashioned natural order when the drainage problem is worked out. [illegible] and still be able to get in a few holes for the [illegible] to a real club. It takes time, money and patience [illegible] is an opportunity for a few more to get in on the ground floor here by writing Steve Cunningham, No. 268 Walnut street, Brookline, or by telephoning Brookline 6849 M. Send your inquiries to the golf department, Boston American, and they will be attended to immediately.

KNOCKOUTS AT ELKS' BOXING TOURNEY

With more than half of the bouts terminating by knockouts, the members of the Boston Elks felt amply repaid for their visit to their quarters on Somerset street last night to witness the Spring amateur boxing carnival held under the auspices of the athletic committee.

Three classes were represented in the ring and in each class thrilling contests resulted. Mike Landers of the North End and Frank Fresno of Lynn staged the best bout of the evening, and incidentally [illegible] displayed a bit of gameness which is not common.

Appearing in the first bout of the evening, he suffered a [illegible] nose which was the target for most of the blows started by his opponent in the ensuing contests.

It took an extra round for Fresno to get the decision in the semi-final and he appeared tired in the final. He lasted, however, and gave the winner more than a run for the prize.

GLOUCESTER CAPTURES NORTH SHORE TUSSLE

Beverly, April 27.—Gloucester High defeated Beverly in a North Shore league game on the Coney athletic field by a score of 11 to 7.

The score:

Commerce Blanks Groton

DARTMOUTH HAS SPRING GRID PRACTICE

Hanover, N. H., April 27.—The Dartmouth 1922 football team had 75 candidates report for the first time to Head Coach Jack Cannell. Additional candidates will report Saturday, giving Cannell the largest squad to work with that has ever gone through the Spring workouts.

Suits were issued today and work started in dead earnest. Conditioning drill will go for a few days, and before the month period is up scrimmage will be held for several sessions.

B. C. GOES TO DEFEND TITLE AT PENN

The Boston College relay team leaves tonight for Philadelphia, where it will take part in the Class B one-mile relay against twelve strong competitors at the Penn Carnival.

This year's team is composed of [illegible] Nolan, Art Kirley, Phil Dunn and Jake Driscoll. Caffrey, who was expected to beat out Kirley in the trials for places on the team, [illegible] not yet recovered from a [illegible] Walter Nolan [illegible] last year, has a race to [illegible] Lab before he will find time to do any further running.

The Maroon and Gold runners captured first place last year in Class B, and Coach Jack Ryder considers that his men have a good chance of duplicating the performance again this year.

The B. C. team won the championship last year by doing the course in 3 minutes, 24 2-5 seconds. This year's team is probably about two seconds slower, but Ryder believes that his men will be at least two seconds better than their nearest rival.

Jake Driscoll, an anchor man, is expected to be the bright star. He is in fine condition, and has a nice habit of nullifying any disadvantage that his teammates may suffer.

SENATORS POUND THE RED SOX HURLERS

Washington, D. C., April 27.—From the showing on the series that closed last night, Manager Duffy hasn't a first class pitcher on his staff. Using ten pitchers in three games stands out in substantiation of the argument, three in each of the first two games and four in the third.

Of the entire ten not one showed any speed or class and apparently, whenever he tried to put on steam failed to locate the rubber.

What a crying shame it is that the twirlers sold by the Red Sox in the past two years could go out and win games with the best team in the world behind them.

During the series, which closed yesterday with a victory for Washington by the lopsided score of 13 to 6, the Red Sox got nine runs on 31 hits, while the Senators garnered 36 runs on 43 hits.

Ball players dearly love their hits and what a wonderful donation has come the Griffmen's way in the Boston series. The Griffs were in a terrible slump, but they are now back in the running, being chock full of confidence and pep.

And look what is ahead of the Sox. Five straight games with the Yankees, with a pitching staff all shot to pieces and the Sox fielders will be lucky if several are not sent to the hospital.

When the Senators can hammer the ball all over the lot, it is reasonable to expect that the Yank sluggers will be tearing down the stands and fences with their drives.

We can sympathize with the players but the management deserves all the harsh criticism drifting their way.

It looks like the handwriting on the wall for Frazee, as he is evident[illegible] had to put forward a club that will be so lamentably weak as to make his companion magnates buy him out at any price. He has evidently reached the end of his string, as he has no men to sell, as even Dugan is not a comparable asset with Carl Mays or Sam Jones et al.

The Red Sox left on a late train last night for New York, unless they have an exhibition game under their belt somewhere in the bushes that they have kept a secret. Jimmy Burke was about the only man who left Washington with a smile and with it a remark to the effect that the Sox will be going better the next time they come this way. For the sake of real sport it is to be hoped that he is right.

HUNTINGTON EXPECTS TO SET RECORD

By FRED C. LANE.

The annual pilgrimage of New England schoolboy runners got under way today when Brookline, Medford, Lynn English, Exeter and Huntington sent their fleetest of foot to the Penn Relay Carnival.

Judging from the performances of the boys who will run for those schools New England will be well represented. Not in years has the delegation been so strong. Every school has made a creditable showing at the indoor track meets and should even better those performances.

Brookline is sending over the strongest squad. The team set up a new State record last Winter and has been showing remarkable speed over the 440 yard route. The team will leave tonight for New York and will spend a day in the big town.

Brookline Will Run Only in the Mile Relay Race

Captain James Thompson, Rowell Chase, Francis Daley, Charlie Sweet, John Dowling and Coach Henry Carroll make up the Brookline party. Only the mile relay race will be taken in by the Brookline boys who have devoted their entire attention for this quarter-mile-a-man event.

Medford High will attempt to carry home a prize with its relay team again this season. Although beaten by Brookline in the State meet Coach Edmund O'Donnell figures his men faster outdoors. The Medford party will take part in the medley race tomorrow and the mile relay on Saturday.

The squad will be made up of Captain Joe Kelley, Harrington Moore, Fennell Reilly, Henry Hormel, Maurice Davidson, Neal Lowe, Coach O'Donnell and Faculty Manager Ralph E. Kendall. They will go to New York with the Huntington squad.

Huntington's Medley Team Hopes to Better Record

Huntington School, is sending over a medley team which hopes to even better the record set up last year. The Back Bay school is also taking part in the prep school mile race. Captain Curtis Parker will run the 880, Richard MacFarland will hold up his end in the 660, Larry Simmons will dash in the 220 and Bill Spinney over the 440 route.

Huntington is well represented in this race and should win the trophy for the second time. The team was unfortunate in the draw but the speed of each runner at his distance should help the wearers of the Red and Black to break the tape.

Lynn English left for the battle ground last night via the Fall River boat. The team has the pole position in the mile relay race and is in sixteenth place in the medley. Warren Deshon, Henry Kelley, Chester McKean, Frank Croddy, Roderick Pierce, Acting Faculty Manager William Murphy and Coach George Sexton made up the party.

CALZA WINNER IN TWO STRAIGHT FALLS

Fitchburg, April 27.—George Calza defeated Fred Tilakoff in two straight falls in the City Hall here last night before the largest crowd that ever attended a wrestling match in the city.

A combination double wrist lock brought about the second fall in 18 minutes and 30 seconds.

Bowser and Kilonis will wrestle here next week.

He'll succeed where Gardini failed. But it will only be by a furious battle that Calza will gain a victory. Londos will battle gallantly, but will eventually go down to defeat.

That's the dope, ladies and gentlemen. But as sporting events are often filled with surprises, Londos may hand us a jolt. But until we are shown we shall stand by our guns and Calza.

Calza Is Picked to Beat Londos by Conway

Calza will win!

That's Jack Conway's dope on the big wrestling match at the Grand Opera House tonight. He declares the Italian champion will prove too strong and tough for his more experienced rival.

Conway has picked ten winners in a row.

Edwards, Montreal, Malone, Lewis; Calza to beat Steinborn, McAtee, Fruzetti, Herman, Travers; Calza to beat Gardini also came through.

Will it be eleven straight tonight?

A DOLLAR ON MOLLA

By Charles E. Parker

In days ... when knights were bold,

Each b'lieves, the tennis world she reigns,
And aches to make the other quake—
They are Suzanne and Molla.
Soon they will clash and dash and smash—
On one I'd bet ... little ...
The dame I name is really game—
On Molla goes my dollar.

N. E. STARS TO SHINE AT PENN CARNIVAL

By CHARLES E. PARKER

In only six of the thirty-four events on tomorrow's Pennsylvania Relay Carnival at Franklin Field Philadelphia is there a strong New England interest. But in those six events so formidable is New England representation that a New England clean-up may result.

The six events are:

The pentathlon, the two-mile run, the hammer throw, the intercollegiate sprint medley relay championship, the intercollegiate distance medley relay championship and the interscholastic medley relay championship.

Bob LeGendre

New England's star entrant in the pentathlon is Bob LeGendre of Bangor, Me., and Georgetown University, who was a scorer in the Olympic pentathlon at Antwerp two years ago and last year won the Penn pentathlon by a most ... margin, repeating ... victory he scored at Franklin Field ... Unless surprising opposition develops Bob should ... event for the third time ... afternoon.

Another New Englander Sure Starter in Two-Mile

In the two-mile run another New Englander who won his event in Philadelphia last year is a sure starter, and there is a possibility that another star distance runner who hails from this section may get into the race. The winner last year was Ray Baker of Bates College.

The other possible starter from ... is ... Robert ... of Cornell, who hails from ... with another Cornell ... P. Brown, are the leading ... milers in college circles and one of the three is almost certain to win tomorrow's race.

In the hammer throw ... Brown, captain of the ... track team, who is to be the ... representative at the ... the man generally picked ... the title. The Crimson ... won the recent ... A. THE BEAUTY SHOP

A Story of Romance, Adventure and Laughs

A Sparkling Tale of Two Countries, in Which the Versatile Hero Wins a Bride Instead of a Fortune

("The Beauty Shop," the play by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, has been created into a photoplay by Cosmopolitan Productions, direction of Edward Dillon, scenario by Doty Hobart. It will be released as a Paramount Picture).

[illegible] Version Novelized

By Jane McLean.

DR. ARBUTUS BUDD, as his name might imply had a [illegible] was the mission of the idealist; he wished to leave the world more lovely than he found it.

[illegible] was patent to all his [illegible] the [illegible] Dr. Budd [illegible]

The Beauty Shop was [illegible] every [illegible] for its [illegible]

[illegible] another [illegible] of sending [illegible]

[illegible] of time his lax [illegible] and the famous words, "charge it," were heard more and more often in [illegible]

[illegible] Anna who persuaded him that he needed a financial adviser to steer the Beauty Shop away from the rocks, a diplomat to handle querulous ladies, and a lawyer to settle the many snarls due to complicated bookkeeping.

"[illegible] three," said the doctor, gazing at the lovely Anna from a high stool in the laboratory where he was dabbling in ointments, liquids and powders. "One, two, three, rather an expensive little company, my dear."

Anna to the Rescue

"No," said Anna, "because I know a man who combines all the personalities I've just mentioned."

"Ah," said the doctor, "elucidate."

And Anna, without a smile, proceeded to give the history of Philip Briggs from the time he was ten to the present, naturally her interest was impersonal, and yet—

"And how do you happen to know this person?" queried the doctor, a little suspiciously.

"He's the brother of a girl I knew at school," replied his ingenuous ward as though that set [illegible] forever.

"[illegible] available?" [illegible] "You're sure [illegible] to be appointed Secretary of the Treasury or something [illegible]—I wouldn't want to stand in his way."

"Oh, no," cried the delighted Anna [illegible] at the doctor's seriousness [illegible] out of a job just at present. Shall I telephone Sally to tell him to come around and see you?"

A Vital Error.

"Don't you think we ought to send for him?" asked the doctor, "maybe he wouldn't like to be phoned to; he might be taking a nap."

"Oh, no, not at this hour, he wouldn't—that is he wouldn't be [illegible]." Anna [illegible] him as she hurried to the next room to convey the invitation to Sally to [illegible].

The interview between Dr. Budd and his new factotum was brief. Mr. Briggs proved to be a young man of engaging personality who not only unblushingly admitted the possession of all the virtues ascribed to him by Miss Budd, but more.

His good looks were against him, but the doctor in a spirit of generosity passed this over and came down to business.

"I suppose you don't know much about running a beauty shop?"

"Like any other business, isn't it?"

The doctor shook his head. "My friend—it's unlike any other business—here we strive to take the old, the fat, the ugly, the thin, the scrawny and achieve the impossible—beauty at any price is our motto—"

"But the trouble is you don't get the price?" the young man put in.

"As I was saying," went on the doctor pushing back the stray forelock that gave him an appearance [illegible] young man's remark, "we endeavor to impart to all who enter our portals, something they did not possess before—how well we have succeeded the world knows—we number among our assets some of the largest and most exclusive [illegible] accounts in the [illegible] we have dedicated The Beauty Shop to the proposition that all women are created equal—cosmetically speaking, and—"

"I see, I see," said Briggs, feeling obliged to say something and regarding a polite lie as apt as [illegible] he began to hum a tune much to the surprise of the caller.

"I think I've got it," said the doctor suddenly. "I've been after that note for a fortnight; I had it once, then I lost it. Now I've got it again."

"If I come in with you," said Briggs [illegible] I [illegible] that every note passes through my hands."

"I beg your pardon," said the doctor.

"Method is what you need, a system [illegible] a [illegible] system for one thing. These charge accounts—bad, bad, and the losing of notes—bad, bad."

The doctor shook his head "Listen," he said, [illegible] a persuasive hand on the young man's arm. "This note I speak of—it's a trombone note, you understand?"

The Doctor Acts

With a serious face the famous inventor of beauty lotions walked away, pausing at the door to remark: "You're on, Briggs, take everything here at its face value and rearrange us on a C. O. D. basis."

And again humming the note that had so long eluded him, he disappeared. The young man was left standing there, a trifle amused a good deal perplexed. To him came Anna.

"I am."

"Splendid! And you'll fix things up so that people will pay their bills, won't you?"

"I should say I would. Your guardian seems to be a good natured sort of [illegible] isn't he?"

"I don't think he's a genius; he always says I'm his inspiration."

"He does? Well I like that. He's old enough to be your grandfather."

"I suppose you'll see I'm properly introduced to the force," queried the new manager.

"Oh, yes, come right along. You'll find the girls very attractive. They're all as anxious as I am to save the business because it means their bread and butter."

Under such auspices Phillip Briggs entered upon his duties as directing head of The Beauty Shop. It seemed simple as he looked things over. Scores of well gowned customers [illegible] in and out, buying powders, perfumes, lotions, pastes and cosmetics or [illegible] to have [illegible] more [illegible] of the doctor's [illegible] assistants.

An Old Story

It all looked very prosperous, but ladies looks are not the only ones that deceive, the customers with a wave of the hand, a [illegible] frown or a benevolent smile bore away their purchases or made their exits with renewed complexions, all uttering the aforesaid [illegible] words "charge it." [illegible] not even pause to [illegible] which shows what [illegible] of fashion the renowned [illegible] had attained.

Mr. Briggs' first question after observing the exit of the last customer was one tinged with a slight sarcastic accent: "Any cash customers today?"

"Oh, no, sir," the cashier smirked at him, "but we've had some of the loveliest charge accounts."

The practical Anna and the new manager exchanged glances, while from the next room came one booming sound followed by another. "Don't be alarmed," said Anna, "it's the doctor playing the trombine."

"That's the new note he's discovered—I see—I see," said Mr. Briggs who really did see this time. "Does he—does he indulge very often?"

"That's the sad story in his [illegible] commonplace life," Anna informed him. "It's an obsession [illegible] rather be the trombonist in a band than the—well [illegible] the Emperor of Austria."

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

DAILY SHORT STORY--OUT OF PAST

By Corona Remington

"DADDY, I want to go over to the pretty lady's house. [illegible] in his arms.

"Tubs, you mustn't [illegible] and you must not go over to the pretty [illegible]"

But she isn't really your muddy, [illegible] turn the child then [illegible] sat on in the dark and pondered.

After all why had Ruth been taken from them? They had been so happy their few short years [illegible] only to have the loved one snatched away?

Bosom Friend

Ruth's bosom friend, had [illegible] [illegible] inseparable. [illegible] occurred to him of asking Constance Jefferson to come over to the white house to drive away the [illegible] and to take care of Tubs [illegible] across his mind, and he shrank back, feeling himself a traitor to a sacred memory. Once, though, he had gotten so far that Constance [illegible] ran [illegible]

"Ruth was my best friend," she said in a breathless gasp as she [illegible] Constance white and constrained, appeared around the corner of the porch one afternoon.

Awkwardly Mr. Matthews rose and went toward her.

"I—I hate to do it, Tom, and I know it will hurt, but—she asked [illegible] for you until today and gave it to you then."

With a catch in her throat Constance [illegible] a white envelope toward Matthews and disengaging herself from the little boy rushed across the yard and through the side gate to her own little bungalow.

With trembling fingers the man opened the envelope and numbly [illegible]

The Letter.

"My Own Darling Husband

"When you read this it will be two years since I left you and Tubs. [illegible] —I am selfish enough to hope that you have—but I want you to re[illegible] place of a woman in a child's life. Once yesterday, I almost asked you to promise me to marry Constance, yet I couldn't quite do it. But now that two years have passed and you are not yet married (else Constance would have destroyed this letter unread at my request) I am going to beg you not to let any sentiment for me stand in the way. A man needs a wife and a child needs a mother, always. If Constance is still in the little bungalow please go to her today, this very minute and let her read this letter. Kiss my boy and don't waste a useful life grieving.

"RUTH."

S[illegible] Matthews [illegible] over to the little bungalow and, unable to speak, [illegible] Constance the letter. Dreading something, she knew not what, she hurriedly scanned the pages.

"She was the most wonderful woman I have ever known," said Constance quietly.

In the Dark.

[illegible] of some [illegible] before your marriage? Well, the best thing you can do is to confess.

Biggs—I know, but she won't let me read the letter, and I don't know what to confess.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED COUPLE

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1922, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"WE [illegible] to [illegible] must get word to him. I wonder if he's down in the oil country? [illegible]"

"No," she said tersely—almost [illegible] If only I could go—but I'm tied here. And Mr. Harrison is out of [illegible] everything that might count.

"There are plenty of people who would go—if they knew where to go," I said thoughtfully. "But after all, my husband knows that Dick West isn't sitting with his hands tied. Jim must realize there will be plotting and counter plotting here. He won't be taken off his guard. But something terrific might happen if we did manage to find Jim—and Dick were on our trail."

The sound of my own voice made me shiver. My own words conjured up a memory of the mad fury in which Dick West shot Neal—and had shot to kill. Better far that [illegible] should expose Jim to the insanity which stops at nothing—the insanity which possesses Dick West when he wants to dispose of an enemy. I forced myself to calmness and said:

"Clearly enough we can't do anything in the line of trying to communicate [illegible] But [illegible] ask you. Did my husband know of their experience with [illegible] in the old days at Tampico?"

"Yes. Because of that he realized he could trust me [illegible] questions, I don't know [illegible] I felt constrained to go a step farther. The name on the [illegible] Jim had sent to the office remained in my memory. Perhaps this was because that name had occurred again in Mabel's story of Dick West. [illegible] that the queer [illegible] on the [illegible] had burned itself indelibly on my mind.

Did you tell Jim the name of the [illegible] the claim Dick West eventually [illegible]

"[illegible] yes—I suppose I must [illegible]" Mabel laughed shamefacedly and shook her head in puzzled wonder as she went on.

"I'm ashamed to have my brain go suddenly foggy on such an important detail. But you know how business men pounce on what seems reliant to them. The name of the Cordovas, through whom Dick West finally showed himself to me and because of whom I was driven from Tampico, may not have crept into the story. It may have seemed a minor detail. I can't recall. Do you think it matters especially?"

"Probably not," I replied uneasily. "I suppose I was merely wondering if Mr. Harrison had made a bee-line for those Cordovas because of what you'd told him or if he'd merely stumbled across them—as he did you."

"He didn't merely stumble across me, Mrs. Harrison. We met through Dick West," replied the girl, half under her breath. "Don't ask me to go into details."

To Be Continued.

THE GREATEST OF COMPLIMENTS

By Beatrice Fairfax

THE most beautiful tribute life has ever given me came from my blessed father the other day. He told a man I respect and revere [illegible] that I was growing more like my mother every day.

I wish I could reach across space to every mother of every daughter [illegible]

What [illegible] a mother than a life so beautiful that nothing can crown her daughter's life in turn like the knowledge that she is [illegible] her mother's beautiful character?

Oh, mothers! How dare you be petty or weak or selfish or cruel in the pursuit of your own desire—when the young generation which comes after you is waiting to form itself upon the model you set before it? Will you miss the tender tribute of a woman who knows nothing more glorious can be said of her than that she is in truth your own daughter?

Longs to Be Good

Can anything more perfect be assured you than the earthly immortality of another woman who longs to be good and true and strong and [illegible] because you were a[illegible] these things and because her eyes are [illegible] to the glory of what you have shown her?

Oh daughters! Will you fail the beautiful example of a noble mother's life? Will you shame her memory by failing the high example she set you? Will you break her heart by departing from the noble traditions she has revealed to you in her own life?

One of the most beautiful relations [illegible] mother and daughter. Two women — one young on the threshold of life—one with experience and suffering and [illegible] for the most part behind her—and both bound together by the wonderful tie of motherhood. [illegible] mother and daughter [illegible] but two women of one blood—with the older to guide and inspire and the younger to carry on what the other has well begun.

Nobility in Heritage

I think nothing can so ennoble a young woman as to feel that she is becoming daily more worthy of her heritage from her mother. I feel sure nothing can more beautifully repay the woman slipping on toward the horizon of our earthly life than the knowledge that she has builded well and that her child is proud indeed to be hers—and like her.

There is a nobility in the heritage of race. Not in family pride, not in snobbery, not in riches—but in fine traditions and beautiful character is the greatest inheritance laid up for parent to pass on to child.

The mother whose daughter does not thrill with joy when told [illegible] bore her has failed. The daughter who cannot [illegible] with happiness when told she is like her mother has missed one of the most perfect things that can come down to her.

Reverence the mother who has given you life, is the word I want to say to the girls of today. But more tenderly, more eagerly still, I ask the mothers if they will forgo the tribute of a daughter's [illegible] thought.

"I am growing more like my mother every day."

Just Punishment.

"Oh, Willie! Who opened the canary's cage?"

"I did. You told me that a little bird was a whispering to you when I was naughty, so I knew it must be him, as there was no other little bird about. So I opened the cage, and the cat's eaten him. That's what he's got for telling [illegible] me."

NOW DO MY WORKWITHEASE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Hornell, N.Y.—"I was in bad health but there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me. I was tired out all over and it was an effort for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly every one around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it, so at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and I improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like."—Mrs. CHAS. BAKER, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N.Y.

In almost every neighborhood there are women who know of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They know because they have taken it and have been helped. Why don't you give it a trial?

Here's Dr. Arbutus Budd—smile, uniform and medals. The young man is Briggs, his manager, and the girl is his ward, Anna, with whom Briggs is in love. Budd is in love with her also, and no wonder.

Under such auspices Phillip Briggs entered upon his duties as the head of The Beauty Shop. It seemed simple as he glanced idly over scores of well painted announcements (some in need of powders perhaps to cover pimples and freckles) or vain efforts to cover gray hairs or hide their absence, and noted the hands of the doctor trained assistants.

An Old Story

It all looked very prosperous, but Briggs knew are not the only ones that lessen the customers with a wave of the hand, a sneer-ing look or a bewildered exclamation, all uttering the same word for words. "Fudge it!" That of them will not even pause to read the note which shows what means of fashion the recommend. They will simply tell grinning Mr. Jones to get queer on after-noon tea or of the latest cut-throat was one to use it with a slick-ing gesture. "Any cash cus-tomers, Jones?"

"Yes, sir," the cashier answered at last, "but we've had some of the loveliest charge accounts."

His practical Anna and the new maid-servant exchanged a knock, whereupon the next room came one, a dainty sound followed by no-one. "Don't be surprised," said Anna, as the doctor passing the treasure.

"If the new note has the contents I suppose I will," said Mr. Jones who really did love the ladies—"I'll be lonely if—"

"I don't think he can be lonely always since I'm his financier!"

"The Lost Chord. Well I feel that it's the correct name for it," Anna interrupted him. "It has no connection with him—he'd rather be the trombonist in a band than throw-out from the Emperor of Austria."

"Not that The Lost Chord of Love has been found—Cupid's arrow has pierced his heart at last."

"You wouldn't mind if I left you a moment?" inquired, "without a message—"

The Doctor Acts

With a serious face ten fingers inventor of lovely lotions waved away, peering at the door to remark. "Sure on, Briggs, take everything here at his face value and I strongly us on a C. O. D. basis."

And again humming the note that had so long eluded him, he disappeared. Tom Wing Kee was left wondering more or less used a good deal perplexed. To him came April.

"You're going to stay?"

"Splendid! And you'll fix things up so that people will pay their bills, won't you?"

"I should say I would. Your guardian seems to be a good-natured soul, oh gosh-es, yes, he!"

"I don't think he's quite so good-natured as I'm his financier!"

"The Lost Chord. Well I feel that it's the correct name for it," Anna interrupted him. "It has no connection with him—he'd rather be the trombonist in a band than throw-out from the Emperor of Austria."

"The Lost Chord of Love has been found—Cupid's arrow has pierced his heart at last."

"You wouldn't mind if I left you a moment?" inquired, "without a message—"

"I beg your pardon," interrupted Briggs.

BROWNATONE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Bornell, N. Y.—"I was in bad health but there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me. I was tired all over and it was an effort for me to move. I felt irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly every one around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it, so at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like."—Mrs. Chas. Baker, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N.Y.

In almost every neighborhood there are women who know of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They know because they have taken it and have been helped. Why don't you give it a trial?

FINANCE and BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Do business and financial leaders prefer college graduates when picking men? Is it advisable for a man who aspires to attain business success to spend four years or more at college? Are most of the very biggest business positions in America held by college or by non-college men?

Old school men of affairs, most of them graduates only of the university of hard knocks, had little respect, as a rule, for college-bred youths. They themselves had won their way to the top without any diploma, and many of them looked rather with disdain upon "College Dandies," as they sometimes dubbed the products of colleges.

But the new school of leaders is composed to quite an extent of college graduates. Of the three largest industrial corporations in America, two are headed by college men. The president of our largest railway had a college education; the heads of the country's largest national bank and largest trust company have diplomas.

On the other hand, not one of the richest men in the country is a college graduate—neither John D. nor William Rockefeller has a college degree, neither has George F. Baker nor Henry Ford, neither has Thomas Fortune Ryan or James B. Duke, neither had Harriman nor Hill.

It can be safely stated that the majority of financial and business leaders of today look favorably upon a college education when selecting assistants.

President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania Railroad, a college man, has just compiled figures which will interest both business men and young men. He says: "A comparative study was recently made of the education data in the official biographies of 163 principal officers and directors of the Pennsylvania system. Of these men, 86 were found to be college graduates and 77 not. Superficially, that does not look like a very striking preponderance in favor of the college men.

"However, we must consider that for every hundred men entering the railroad's service with a college education, there are a good many thousands who start without one. Therefore a comparatively small group of men have produced 86 leading officers and directors who are college trained, where the 77 not so trained represent the winners in a race of competition among thousands."

Of all leading men of affairs I know, very few have not made themselves very well educated, no matter how scant their early schooling. There are a few glaring exceptions, it is true, but I should say that nine of every ten business and financial men who have become nationally known would qualify as "educated." If this is so, are there not distinct advantages in seeking as much education as possible early in life?

BEAR TRADERS DRIVE LIST DOWN

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

The New York market was weak at the close, final prices being but little above the lowest of the session. The bear drive was continuous and finally affected the whole list. It was another million-share day. While a few individual stocks made large gains there was no group strength.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois issues sold at year highs, the common rising 3½ to 36 before the finish and the preferred 3 to 56. Lake Erie & Western preferred was up about five points at its highest, it being reported that Cleveland interests are seeking control. American Radiator had advanced more than four.

Largest losses at the close included Electric Storage Battery, 4⅛; American Smelting, 2; Studebaker, 1¾; Eastern Kodak, 5; Canadian Pacific, 1⅞; General Asphalt, 1⅝; New York Central, 1⅛, and United Fruit, 1⅞.

U. S. Steel closed with ½ loss at 97, Mexican Petroleum was down ⅞ at 128½, Bethlehem B ⅝ at 77, Baldwin ¼ at 115¼ and Reading 1⅛ at 76.

Prices ruled lower at the opening, most of the overnight orders being to sell. But when bears applied selling pressure they met with a good deal of resistance. The market showed considerable underlying strength during the morning, although it weakened to some extent. Few forenoon losses exceeded a point. Gains were not large as a rule. Oils, rails and motors yielded generally, while steels displayed a little class strength. Selling pressure was quite evenly distributed through the list by bears in their effort to find weak spots. The midday trend was downward. In the afternoon still lower prices were reached, the continuous drive having its effect.

Liquidation at Market Opening

By W. S. COUSINS, Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 27.—At the opening this morning the stock market continued the liquidation which featured the last hour of yesterday's session. It was evident that the brokerage houses had received an accumulation of selling orders with instructions to execute them at the best prices obtainable.

In speculative oil, motor and industrial stocks there was a wide opening, reaching as high as 1⅜ points in such issues as Mexican Pete, Studebaker and Bethlehem Steel. The last mentioned received rough treatment at the hands of the bear traders, who circulated more reports of the passing of the Bethlehem B stock dividends today, notwithstanding the statement attributed to the heads of the corporation that no such action was contemplated.

The general hammering of the market was attributed to a group of bearish professionals who have been vigorously striving to break the market for nearly two months. They were credited with having circulated the first calamity statements about Studebaker stock when it was selling 25 points lower than it is today.

After the first hour prices steadied in the general list and a rally was inaugurated which brought prices to a little higher than the level of yesterday's close. Railroad, independent steel and oil stocks were taken back at a higher range. One element in the stock market is the calling attention to the fact that bankers will take advantage of the present money supply to float a number of large bond issues, including South American and European loans, and that no severe reaction in the market will be permitted until these flotations have been completed. They state emphatically that the market is not in the hands of the bear professionals but is dominated by responsible bankers.

Bond Market Dull and Irregular

By MONROE ROBERTS Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 27.—In the early hours today the bond market was inclined to be dull and irregular, nevertheless there was a good demand for investments securities and the high level of prices was maintained. All the foreign bonds showed disposition to advance under accumulation by investors and investing institutions. The local traction bonds showed the effort of unfavorable development in the traction controversy. Speculative railroad bonds show the effort of selling pressure. Liberty bonds were irregular.

A canvass of the financial district indicates that foreign dispatches reporting that Poland and Jugo-Slavia had arranged loans in this market constituted at least a slight exaggeration. Representatives of both countries have been shopping here but so far as can be learned have met with only moderate encouragement. When the situation abroad clears bankers admit the possibility of loans being offered for these countries, but at present they think chances are slim.

PRICES LOWER ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

The Boston market had a fairly strong opening, although many issues were unchanged and losses were not infrequent. The weakness of the New York list was quickly reflected here. The local movement took a downward turn and by noon declines were in a large majority. Gains were confined to fractions. Point or more losses were sustained by Ahmeek, Boston & Maine C, Mexican Investment and Pacific Mills. Coppers were down as a rule. Packing shares were listless and rails sought a lower level, with the exception of New Haven, which recovered a small opening loss. Trading was quiet and without any interesting phase.

By afternoon the inclination toward a lower price level was accentuated. General Electric was off 3¼ at 160⅝ in the last hour: United Fruit had dropped 2½ to 141: Calumet & Hecla 2 to 273 and Edison 2 to 167. Point or more losses were shown by American Telephone, Calumet & Arizona, Osceola, Boston & Maine preferred, International Cement, Greenfield Tap, Mississippi Power and Seneca.

CURB MARKET DULL.

There was less animation to the Curb market. After starting with a good tone it became adversely affected by the reactionary movement on other exchanges. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Crystal, Eureka, Mutual and Verde Mines. At noon gains included Boston & Montana 4 cents at 22 cents, Verde Mines 1 cent at 35 cents, Three Metals 5 cents at 99 cents, First National 10 cents at 85 cents, Gadsden ¼ at 1¼ and Crystal 1-16 at 1⅜. Among losses were Bagdad 1 cent at 25 cents, Eureka 1 cent at 28 cents, Mutual 1 cent at 38 cents and Texana half a cent at 8 cents.

OILS WERE LEADERS ON NEW YORK CURB

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 27.—An irregular price movement characterized Curb trading today, with business as a whole showing a falling off from recent averages. Oils again were the most prominent stocks, although many industrials were in fair demand.

Commission house business was smaller. After lower levels were reached good rallies followed, in many cases, on covering. Beechnut Packing was admitted to trading and after going up reacted on profit taking.

SAYS LABOR AND CAPITAL MUST WORK FOR ALL

Trying times in the cotton industry due to downward readjustment and the strike situation were described in an address by President Russell B. Lowe of Fitchburg at the convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers today.

At the same time he expressed the hope that the darkest period was passing and that the next few months would carry the industry into better times with more employment and a larger and more stabilized market.

"Labor and capital in the cotton industry must learn that they are working for the public, and unless they work at the public's prices they cannot work," said Mr. Lowe.

"The public is poor and it is a buyer's market. It is as impossible to turn back these conditions and demands as it is the tides. Labor and capital must both take much less than they would like, or suffer."

He named as three great causes which have forced goods down and brought about the present situation, first, unsatisfactory prices received from crops which has reduced the purchasing power of the farmer; second, unemployment, which has cut the purchasing power of millions of consumers, and third, the imports of foreign goods, which on March 1 were 99,000,000 square yards for the previous eight months.

1921 CROP COSTLY.

"These are enormous factors and it is difficult to say which is the worst," he continued. "The condition of agriculture is well known. The 1921 crop was costly and the return was on the 1914 level. This caused great financial loss to the farmers and caused them to seek aid from the government and to band themselves together for protection in legislative and financial matters.

"All this Winter their demand has been to coal miners, railroad employes, factory employes and capital: 'Get down on our levels; liquidate the way we have, and then we can trade with you.'

"A wage reduction has been necessary since last December, and every buyer and manufacturer knows it. The delay and indecision in putting it into effect has cost the industry:

"(1) Four months' partial business, because every buyer has said, 'I will keep out of this market until things settle!'

"(2) It has cost the manufacturer the confidence of the employes because of the contradictory statements from the mills.

"(3) It has cost the employes many weeks' pay, because of the new readjustment of prices and the many strikes, which would have been avoided if action and statements had been united."

URGES COTTON DEPOT.

Mayor Curley, speaking at the opening of the convention today at the Hotel Somerset, urged that the city and the association get together and obtain control of the army base at South Boston for a great cotton depot.

The Mayor said in part:

"The city of Boston is now negotiating with Washington to obtain control of the army base, with its piers, docks, splendid equipment and vast storage facilities, and here it proposes to set up, if you will help, a great cotton depot to serve the textile industries of New England.

"Here may be stored hundreds of thousands of bales at a trifling expense, which can be forwarded to your mills as your industrial needs demand, giving you quick and safe deliveries, saving you needless expense building warehouses, and giving you a service difficult to obtain today.

"The advantages of this system when worked out in detail must appeal to you. It will be a great public utility working for the commercial and industrial good of Boston, Massachusetts and New England, and not for private gain, a utility to serve you, for upon your prosperity ours rests.

"We will be partners in an enterprise that will help you to do business more successfuly and enable you to compete with your rivals more successfuly. I leave you that thought. Boston wants to help you and New England if it be humanly possible, and I think it is."

JOINT DEBATE OVER BEEF PRICES IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston and New England pay more for meat than is paid elsewhere in the country, according to Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Massachusetts Commission on the Necessaries of Life. Trust methods are not used, and there is no discrimination against this section, asserts Swift & Company. Correspondence in the joint debate between the Beef Trust and the Commissioner follows:

THE BEEF TRUST

Editor Boston American:

An editorial in the American of March 24, entitled "Plan to Furnish Meat to New England at Cost," quotes Mr. Hultman, Commissioner on the Necessaries of Life, as saying that "in New England we are paying more for meat than they are paying anywhere else in the country." The large meat packers are accused of discriminating against and exploiting New England.

There is no basis whatever for such a conclusion. Normally, the same grade of meat ought to cost more in Boston than in other parts of the country, for the simple reason that Boston is farther from the meat producing sections of the country; just as wheat costs much more in Boston than it does in Chicago.

"A MINOR MATTER."

This extra cost of moving meat to Boston, however, is a minor matter. The packers are concerned only with the wholesale price; and the average wholesale selling price of meat in Boston varies from wholesale prices in other markets by only a fraction of a cent a pound for the same quality of meat.

Sometimes the Boston price is a little higher than prices in other cities, but it is also frequently lower. Wholesale prices published by the United States Bureau of Markets show that during the past two years the wholesale price of good steer beef in Boston has frequently been lower than the wholesale prices in New York and Chicago.

Furthermore, direct comparisons with other cities are difficult to make, because Boston, on the whole, takes a higher average quality of meats than do other cities. This is another reason why wholesale prices in Boston might be expected to be slightly higher than prices in other parts of the country.

"ASSUMPTION ABSURD."

At any rate, the assumption that trust methods are used to discriminate against New England is absurd. There is the keenest kind of competition among the large packers and among numerous smaller Packers in selling meat in Boston, and except for occasional variations which happen in every city, the wholesale price of meat keeps in line with prices in other cities and with prices of live animals.

Very truly yours,
SWIFT & COMPANY,
Per L. D. H. WELD, Manager,
Commercial Research Department.

COMMISSIONER HULTMAN

April 22, 1922.

Editor Boston American:

In reply to your letter of April 21 relative to my opinion of the meat situation in Massachusetts, I desire to submit the following:

According to the United States Department of Labor Bulletin (January, 1922) retail meat prices are higher in Massachusetts than in any other section of the country. Representative retail cuts are quoted as follows:

Round steak, per lb.	44.0c	34.5c	29.7c
Ham, per lb.	53.0c	50.0c	43.8c
Lamb, per lb.	33.3c	30.5c	28.2c

Last December I asked Mr. Weld, who called upon me at the State House, to advise me as to the comparative accuracy and fairness of the Department of Labor retail price quotations. This he promised to do, but to date I have not heard from him.

"QUALITY THE SAME."

Continuing my meat investigation I was informed by the Federal Bureau of Markets that the quality of Western dressed beef received in the New York and Boston markets were practically the same. Also, I found that a large amount of meat is shipped from the West to New York, and then certain cuts are profitably shipped to Boston.

I do not desire to enter into any long-distance controversy relative to the control of the so-called big packers, but as a citizen of and believer in our Federal government I am constrained to accept their reports, unless facts to the contrary are presented.

The economic handicaps of Massachusetts jeopardize our future prosperity. The more efficient use of mechanical power with skilled labor is necessary to offset these handicaps, or our cost of living and standard of living must be comparable with those of our competitors.

"Preparedness" for the era of keen competition approaching is essential, and a more even balance between industry and agriculture must be established. The high transportation rates would act as a healthy stimulus to the farmers of Massachusetts, if the distribution problem was more stable.

I am of the opinion that the raising of live stock, the backbone of agriculture, should be fostered in Massachusetts. The old-fashioned European countries raise and slaughter locally their meat supply. The big packers are opposed to this practice in the United States on national economic principles.

I believe that the people of Massachusetts should realize our predicament, and, if possible, be given a fair and practical opportunity to safeguard the future welfare of this Commonwealth.

Very truly yours,
E. C. HULTMAN,
Chairman Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

GET $3,000 LOOT AFTER CUTTING THROUGH ROOF

Springfield, April 27.—Apparently overlooking a skylight, burglars entered the store of the New York Cloak and Suit Company last night by removing a section of the tin roof of the single story building and got away with women's apparel valued at $3,000.

"Gets-It" Relieves Corns in 30 Seconds

Ask Your Friends—They Know

cutting and paring merely makes a bad matter worse. Millions of others are wiser. They know how easily and quickly "Gets-It" shrivels and peels corns and calluses off—in one piece. Get your money back if it fails. Wear new shoes with comfort. Get a bottle today. E. Lawrence & Co., Mfr., Chicago. Cost but a trifle—everywhere.

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

GREAT FOR ECZEMA AND OLD SORES

I Guarantee My Ointment, Says Peterson—Every Box of It.

"If you are responsible for the health of your family," says Peterson, of Buffalo, "I want you to get a large 35-cent box of Peterson's Ointment today.

"Remember, I stand back of every box. Every druggist guarantees to refund the purchase price if Peterson's Ointment doesn't do all I claim.

"I guarantee it for eczema, old sores, running sores, salt rheum, ulcers, sore nipples, broken breasts, itching skin, skin diseases, blind, bleeding and itching piles as well as for chafing, burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and sunburn."

"I had 30 running sores on my leg for 11 years, was in three different hospitals. Amputation was advised. Skin grafting was tried. I was cured by using Peterson's Ointment.—Mrs. F. E. Root, 287 Michigan Ave., Buffalo, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

TEN MORE DAYS FOR FAMOUS TITLES TEST

Then the Test Editor Will Announce Time Limit for Mailing Answers

By THE TEST EDITOR

Participants in the Boston American's $5,000 Famous Titles Test, the fiftieth problem in which is printed today, are advised that within the next ten days this newspaper will place before them full and detailed information about the wrapping and addressing of sets of answers and the time limit within which parcels must be in the mails.

Regardless of the rule against anonymous letters, the Test Editor has received since his last appearance here at lest 25 communications signed only with initials or, where a name was used, without the helpful address which would have permitted a personal reply. Waiving the rule, the apparently most important of the questions are answered below:

NOTE THIS DOWN.

Every participant in the Test will kindly make a note of the two paragraphs immediately following:

1—"Requiescat" is NOT the Correct Title of ANY Test Drawing. That word, improperly spelled, appeared in the List of Titles with Drawing No. 46.

2—The 39th List of Titles begins with "Across the Fields" and ends with "My Heart's Treasure." The 40th List of Titles begins with "The Fool" and ends with "The Downs." Please see that your List No. 39 and your List No. 40 are properly numbered.

The Lists of Titles, by the way, are NOT to be sent in; only the one title you select for each picture.

The most interesting of all the letters that have piled up here, for lack of name and address, comes from West Somerville and reads as follows:

Dear Sir:

Kindly enlighten me on the following:

Two people, man and woman, are now taking part in the contest and are of two different families, not related to each in any way, but there is a chance of them being married to each other by the time the awards are given out in the Test. Now, presuming that they are successful in each landing among the winners, would two awards be granted, or just one? I contend that they would eac hbe entitled to their respective prizes, even though at the time of the awarding of same they are of the same family (man and wife), for the reason that they were solving the Test problems at and during the time when they were not related or of the same family. Am I correct in my assumption? Will look for your answer in the Boston American. I can tell, by the use of my initials, the answer to my inquiry.

West Somerville. S. A. K.

THERE ARE RULES!

The natural impulse of the Test Editor would be, after saying "Bless you, my children!" to say that the First Award should be paid without question to our Test bride and to waive every objection to handing the Second Award to Her Young Man. Furniture is down, to be sure, and grocery and market are not taking all they used to take, but wages have dropped with other commodities and the landlord's appetite is as big as it was in '19. Newlyweds need the money.

But, dear young friends, there are certain Rules of the Famous Titles Test and one of these rules says that "not more than one award shall be given in any one family." Awards are "given"—or paid, to be more exact—AFTER the Test. Clearly, therefore, two awards cannot be paid to S. A. K. and her young man IF they are "Mr." and "Mrs." at the time of payment.

There are, it is true, 219 cash awards, but the contestants number thousands. Why should one household, one family, take $1,750 of the $5,000 appropriation?

ANSWERS TO ANXIOUS.

Reader, Worcester—In this case, "Royal George."

H. M. G., Lynn—The book and the method are quite O K.

E. F. L., Newport—The drawing tells you the same story it tells every other contestant—the same story, indeed, that it tells me. I am not permitted to say more.

K. Lansing—The Thirty-ninth List of Titles begins with "Across the Fields" and ends with "My Heart's Treasure." The fortieth List of Titles begins with "The Fool" and ends with "The Downs." Please number them accordingly. Thank you.

T. H. M., Medford—I have no control over the matter you mention; "orders is orders."

ARTIST'S ORDERS.

E. B. M., Winthrop—The artist has been told that he must not depend upon obsolete words or meanings; he has received no other instructions in that direction. He is free to use any dictionary or other standard book of reference.

F. A. L.—Please see answer to E. F. L., Newport.

B. B. Breed, Boston—Please see answer to E. F. L., Newport.

Miss Richards, Worcester—The same.

E. C. D., Norway, Me.—Same.

G. Foster, West Somerville—Your method is quite O. K.

Keystone Sack, Worcester—You know all that I do about it.

GET THEM RIGHT.

H. W. A., Boston—All I saw were the sets of the eleven leaders; my recollection is that five of the eleven used books and the six others merely fastened their sets together with brass clasps. The important thing is to get the titles right.

A. B. C., Taunton—I expect to be able to demonstrate that one title in each list fits its picture BETTER than any other. Please see answer to E. B. M., Winthrop. Sorry you did not give your address.

Still Hoping, Cambridge—I hope you are right.

F. W. A., Roxbury—I would use capital letters whenever and wherever they appear in the List of Titles.

D. Mac., Calais—The matter you complain about is one over which I have no control.

J. H. C., Somerville—Why should I "commit" myself? See reply to E. B. M., Winthrop.

FOR FIVE CENTS.

A. W. B.—A copy of that picture will be sent to you for five cents in stamps; three cents for the picture and two cents for mailing.

J. J. M., South Boston—Please see reply to E. F. L., Newport.

A. A., Boston—Please see reply to E. B. M., Winthrop.

Ted, North Grosvenordale, Conn.: They will not be thrown out; the better way, however, is to use capitals whenever capitals are used in the List of Titles.

C. G. M., Cambridge—I have never said that all the pictures with the exception of three have one-word titles.

D. McK., East Boston—Only one set of answers will be accepted from one contestant.

A Participant, Pawtucket: Plays upon words are barred in this as they have been in all previous Title Tests. Sorry you did not give me your address.

UNPAID TROOPS TAKE OVER TABRIZ, PERSIA

Constantinople, April 27.—A series ofb attles for the possession of Tabriz, second capital of Persia, has been in progress since the British troops were withdrawn last year, as a result of which the city has been taken by Lauth Khan, commander of the Persian gendarmerie. He set his troops in movement against the Teheran government on the ground that they had not been paid for five months.

Germany and Russia

Why Should We Not Rejoice at the Treaty Between Nations Which Need Each Other's Resources So Greatly?

We see the beginning of an immense flood of propaganda in the newspapers against Germany and Russia because they dared to sign a treaty of peace mutually wiping out all claims against each other, and agreeing to be friends, to recognize each other's rights, to respect each other, to trade with each other, and to have all those proper relations which befit civilized nations in a world where peace reigns.

Not a word in the treaty by the remotest implication suggests an alliance, either offensive or defensive. Not a word in the treaty gives the slightest intimation that there ever was a war from the beginning of the world or that a war is ever expected till Gabriel blows his trumpet. It is not charged that this treaty is an alliance, even a defensive alliance, but it is only intimated vaguely in the newspapers and inspired articles for the purpose of deceiving people who do not think for themselves, and unfortunately it seems to be about nine-tenths of the people who read our newspapers.

Why shouldn't we rejoice at the treaty between Russia and Germany? Germany needs Russia's raw material. Russia needs Germany's educated men, which the dark tyranny of the old Czar's regime prevented Russia from having and just as British tyranny in India has prevented the people in India from having. All Russia's educated men today are absorbed by the problems of government, and Russia needs technicians and scholars and executives to make useful to the world the immense untouched resources of the vast empire of Russia, the largest contiguous empire of the world.

Germany, the most highly skilled nation in the world, whose resources have been absolutely destroyed by the war, needs Russia's raw material to produce for the benefit of the world the things which the world wants for consumption.

Who is it who is objecting, and what right have they to object to this treaty? Somebody asked the head of the Russian delegation at Genoa why Russia didn't tell England that it was negotiating the treaty with Germany, and he promptly replied, "Because Russia is not an English colony." The answer is complete. The allies barely won the war with our assistance, after Russia had half destroyed Germany and three-quarters destroyed Austria. Do the allies think that they can, without our assistance, keep Russia and Germany slaves?

The greatest and most barbarous sabotage that the world has ever seen was the blockade of Russia after the war was over in order to satisfy the nerves of big business throughout the world. Does big business think that it can force an indefinite continuance of this sabotage, which includes both Germany and Russia?

If a man's prejudices have so contracted his heart that it isn't big enough to find pleasure in this trade agreement between Russia and Germany which means so much for the people, not only of those countries but of the world, then he ought at least to be ashamed to denounce the treaty.

Religious Intolerance

Astounding That Apparent Attempt to Exterminate Catholics Should Take Place in Belfast at This Period of Civilization

The apparent attempt to exterminate by murder and arson the Catholics in Belfast and some other parts of northern Ireland is a most astounding thing.

It is astounding that it should happen in this period of civilization, and it is astounding that it should happen in Ireland, where there never was any persecution, as we recall Irish history, of non-Catholics by the Catholics.

Unless we have read their history incorrectly, the Irish Catholics, although among the most devoted people to their religion, are more free from the dark story of religious persecution than any other people in Europe. No people that we know have been so free to submit themselves to the political leadership of men of different faith than the Irish Catholics.

Nearly all the martyrs in the cause of freedom of Ireland, since men who died on the scaffold in years gone by, have been Protestants, for whom the Catholic majority yielded an ungrudging, loyal allegiance. We doubt if there is in the history of the world any exhibition of religious tolerance equal to that of the Irish Catholics in Ireland.

Road Work Is the Big Work

Fifty Million Tons of Road Material

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

You are surprised when you read that the egg work done by the hen amounts in dollars and cents to more than the value of the oxen that you eat. You are, perhaps, more surprised to learn that road building which you see going on here and there, apparently in a small way, is the great industry of the United States.

This year the national government alone will need fifty million tons of stone and gravel for road work. That means one million big carloads.

In 1921 one million men were working on the roads. There ought to be two millions and three millions, the country has plenty of road work for them, and could easily pay them. That would help solve the labor problem.

The others idle could be working on canals, on draining and irrigation. Men that are quite content to see a government allow five million men to stand idle for two years, would laugh at a farmer if he kept five horses idle for one year.

Huge Trucks Block Way

Should Be Compelled to Allow Room on the Road at All Times for Other Cars to Pass

The big motor trucks traveling on our highways have a bad habit of getting into the middle of the street, and by their great width blocking a faster moving car from behind.

This is especially annoying, because they make so much noise that the sound of the horn from the approaching car cannot be heard on the seat of the truck. It takes some time following behind the truck to get a chance to pass it. This is very difficult, if the street is much used and there are frequent oncoming cars.

If there are no other obstacles, it strikes us that these big trucks ought to be compelled to give all the time as much room as possible and, in any event, always leave room enough for a car to pass.

We call the attention of Mr. Goodwin, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, to this situation.

Somebody's Birthday

(Copyright, 1922, by Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

PEOPLE born today have been given by fate the choice of success or failure. Theirs it will be to choose between a brilliant fulfilment of the promise of their natural endowments and the most wretched type of intellectual and physical degradation. Eventually they will find that no middle course is possible.

If today is your birthday you should search out your own spirit and turn it toward the way of its highest good, for the sooner you come into the quickening realization of your own possibilities the sooner you will know what life holds out to you.

Emotionally you are apparently not much attracted by the opposite sex under normal conditions. However, like all your types, once thrown very often with one person, you will be surprised at the amount of passion in your nature.

Today is extremely fortunate for all ventures involving change or alteration of direction or purpose. Your ensuing year will be generally successful, but marked by legal disputes probably unsuccessful.

Herbert Spencer—Philosopher.

General U. S. Grant.

Alice Morse Earle—Author.

ONE BATTER WHO BATS WITH HIS BRAINS

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

DO you know how you looked when you were batting at your best?

With the mid-winter hunger of a thirty-third degree baseball fan, the writer was reading the story of Burns—not Robert, but George Burns, the Cleveland first baseman who has been swapped for Boston's own "Stuffy" McInnis.

Permit us to write presidential Americanese, instead of the King's English, in singing this lyric of our national game. It rose by any other name would smell as sweet; but a baseball story loses flavor if told in terms of nor eal speech.

So here, substantially, is the item, as telegraphed from Cleveland and printed in the baseball columns of a Boston paper, to carry consolation to the hosts of loyal fans who mourn the passing of "Stuffy"—to first base on Tris Speaker's team.

If there ever was a conscientious ball player, on or off the field, it is George Burns. Here is a story to indicate the kind of player Burns is. He batted .328 in 1918 (to the uninitiated let it be told that this is a very high mark, 75 points and more above the average), and then he slumped for two seasons.

Then He Slumped

During the last campaign of our annual baseball war he hunted up a photographer who had taken a flock of pictures of Burns in batting practice during his banner season of 1918.

"I want those photos," said Burns. "I had the best batting position that year I ever had, and I have got away from it. I think if I study that photo again I can come back into my 1918 stride."

He got the photos. His batting average of .361 for the campaign of 1921 demonstrates he may have had the correct hunch!

In further explanation of his slump in 1919 and 1920 we are told that during those two years he was serving under a too temperamental manager who overpraised and overscolded him. And so Burns lost his confidence, and without his confidence he went into a bad batting slump.

Anyone who has played or watched baseball realizes that chance is a large factor in the game. But with that same knowledge he is also aware that, in the long run (if one may be permitted the pun), the best players come to the front and, in a long season the best team wins.

A Large Factor

So it is in the game of life. It is futile, except to serve the weak satisfaction of self-sympathy, to lay your relative failure to mischance. More likely it is due to your "errors" or to poor "batting."

It is equally foolish to explain the other fellow's arrival by good luck. That merely suggests your impotent envy. Most likely, he "got there" by "hitting 'em where they ain't" and by playing consistently good ball.

Don't let a temporary slump defeat you and send you back to the minors. Learn a lesson from George Burns. He used his brains to discover the way out of his slump. And then he acted upon his discovery!

He knew that, when he was hitting well, he must have been meeting the ball with confidence. He knew that this confidence must have shown in his face and been clearly indicated by his pose and poise, by his position and his movement. All of which was proven by the photos which he studied.

So you, dear reader, can surely recall when you "batted" at your best. You met the ball squarely. You did it easily, confidently and, therefore, successfully.

Even if you hit for 200 or less, Life has this advantage over baseball; that is has room and for those who play the game for all that is in it—and in them.

Vote Follows Typewriter

PARIS, April 27.—Now that the French girl has got her typewriter she won't be long in getting the vote.

This is the deduction of Maurice Prax, sometimes called the French Chesterton, who writes in the Petit Parisien.

"Women in America and England owe their affranchisement to the typewriting machines, before the invention of which her only sphere was the home."

The typewriter is coming into her own unmistakably, according to Excelsior, which comments on the fact that of the twenty Queens elected by the Paris wards there was not a single laundry woman, only one milliner, one mannequin and one jeweler worker, seven saleagirls—and ten typewriters.

Ex Libris

—By Zoe B. Faber—

WILLIAM DANA ORCUTT, Boston writer, has just brought out another book to add to his collection of "The Spell." "The Moth," "The Lever" and various others. This one is called "The Balance" (Frederick A. Stokes Company).

The story is of the struggle between the ideas of father and son as to the ways and means of conducting a large mill. In short, it is another contribution to the already appalling list of things that have been written on the labor problem.

The theme is an interesting one. The labor problem as such is one that needs much clear thinking to solve its intricate difficulties. Others have written on the subject more convincingly and more strikingly than Mr. Orcutt in this case. At least, so it seems to us.

The thread of love throughout the story is not one thread, but two—the old story of two women in love with one man. It seems to us a bit far-fetched that two women of such totally different education, habit and environment in life would be seized with the identical desire to sacrifice herself for the other. However, Mr. Orcutt may be right. Perhaps the chrysalis of a Russian factory girl can, in the short space of a book, change into the lovely butterfly of a woman with the highest ideals of personal sacrifice.

To us, the story is not more than mildly interesting. It is not an unusual theme, nor is it especially well handled.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

REPRESENTATIVE FRANK J. BURKE of Roxbury is the first House member in years threatened with being "named" by the Speaker. When a member is "named," he is automatically suspended from further service in the House.

The patience of HENRY C. ATTWILL has been captured by the wild race being made by the courts to acquire new power. He says he hopes for another Ben Butler, who will stand up in defence of popular rights. Attwill is a former attorney-general, a former district attorney and is now chairman of the State Department of Public Utilities.

CHARLES L. BURRILL, former State Treasurer, is telling his friends he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. He took shot at the Lieutenant-Governorship two years ago and says he lost because too many voters thought he was Former State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell.

CHAIRMAN EUGENE C. HULTMAN has been asked for a copy of the last report of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life by the Labor Bureau of the League of Nations. The report showed wholesale prices advanced fifteen per cent. since January 1.

MRS. SUSAN W. FITZGERALD'S statement shows the trend of those in control to snap up the elective power of the people all along the line. A few years ago the Democratic State Committee had forty members, all elected by the people. Now it has 142 members, only forty of whom are chosen by direct vote of the citizens.

TOUGH LUCK—Just after getting a nice city position at $4,000 a year and then to be drawn for jury duty is pretty much like being "out of luck"—ask "BILLY" MoMORROW, City Collector.

DAILY boasts of the venerable JOE O'KANE, forty-nine years at City Hall, to sing the praises of COLONEL WILLIARD D. TRIPP of the State Department of Public Welfare, now rounding out his fifty-fifth year of continuous service at the State House.

NAT BUTLER might stage a meet for the State House veterans this year. ATTORNEY-GENERAL ALLEN rode a bike on the Yale track team. LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR FULLER, GOVERNOR'S COUNCILLOR JIMMY INGRAHAM and DEPUTY CORRECTIONS COMMISSIONER BAGLEY were professionals.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SPIDERS' WISDOM

By Garrett P. Serviss

"One fine September afternoon in Canada I took a walk across country with a friend. About 4 o'clock we came to the top of a large circular stubble-field which we walked down. When we got to the bottom I noticed something like cobwebs all around. When I stooped down and looked all over the field it seemed to be covered by a netting of white cobwebs. Just what this was due to I should like to know.—W. J. C., New York."

YOU were right in your guess.

It was undoubtedly the work of spiders. Such sights are not uncommon in the Autumn in many parts of the country. When sprinkled with dew the sheet of webs gleams like silver gauze, and often appears filled with evanescent rainbows.

What seems surprising is that one seldom catches the least glimpse of any of the myriads of spiders who have done the work. They are great hiders. The hiding instinct is deep planted in them by heredity. It arises from the fact that the whole insect world is allied against the spiders, for the reason that they are carnivorous and live almost exclusively upon insects. If the old classification of spiders with insects had been correct they would have appeared as the typical cannibals of the world.

Really Allies of Man

By being the implacable enemies of insects spiders become the allies of man. Most of us don't like the looks of spiders. For my part I cannot see one suddenly near me without a nervous start or a jump. Thus it often happens that allies dislike one another's appearance and ways. But the main chance keeps them yoked as soon as it is clearly understood, and there can be no doubt about the main chance in the relations of men, spiders and insects.

Spiders don't bite us or sting us—or so rarely that a case can hardly ever be established against them—they do us no material harm, but they slaughter the typhoid fly without mercy, and lend their aid to the gardener and the farmer by destroying hosts of noxious insects.

They are immensely interesting, too, in their ways, habits and doings. I should almost put them at the head of the subhuman animal branch for intelligence. If a spider were as big as a cat his conduct of his life affairs would be plainly seen to outmatch the fox's fabled cunning. The spider was the first aeronaut, first of earth-bred animals to lift himself into the air, and to sail high cloudward, by means of his own devices. Like man, who followed him ages in the rear, he learned to use silk for his balloons, but he spun the silk out of his own bowels. The silk-spinning power was given to him that he might form cocoons for egg cases. Out of it he developed traps and nets for his enemies and his prey, and gossamers for aerial navigation. What was that but intelligence?. He also, in some of his species, utilized this gift to form silk diving-bells, in which, when he has filled them with bubbles of air brought down from the surface, he can live comfortably at the bottom of streams.

Female Larger, More Active

Naturalists would say that the female spider is so much larger and more active than the relatively insignificant male that I ought to have written "she" wherever I have used "he" above; but we have for so many centuries glorifying man over woman in all that relates to inventiveness, invention, politics and the management of affairs that it has become second nature to project the same favoritism into the world of the lower animals, where, for a fact, the female is quite usually superior to the male.

Since there seems reason to believe that the ballooning art was of relatively late development in the history of spiders, why should we not indulge the imagination by picturing the sensation in spiderdom when the first eight-legged aeronaut rode triumphantly up toward the blue sky, borne by a long, infinitely thin, softly waving thread of the purest silk, spun from his body?

How did a spider find out that that would be done? "Accident," you say. Well, even so, it requires intelligence to take a hint from an accident; and looking at the matter from that angle may of man's foremost inventions have not been the offspring of accident? It is perhaps no more than a coincidence ago that the spider first learned to navigate the air, but today the newly-hatched young of many different species make a sport of it, going up in glistening fleets, so many spider-children's aerial parties.

BIDDING IN AUCTION BRIDGE

ARTICLE XV.

Third Play and Declarer's Partner

SHOULD the privilege of the Initial declaration pass to the third player he has the advantage of knowing that his partner's hand is average or less, and he should be guided accordingly. In declaring he must have a trifle better for offense than he would if he were the dealer or second player. He is not bound, however, by the Initial Bid Conventions and his declaration is not regarded as informative.

If the second player has made the Initial bid the third player may in this situation be guided by the instructions given under "Second Play."

The Third player's position is hardest where the Second hand has overcalled, and he is playing partner to the Initial bidder. The real and the assisting value of his hand are difficult to disentangle. He must consider Blank suits, Singletons, number and character of the Trumps, in addition to his high cards. Also the relationship of his hand to his partner's and the overcall of the second player.

The trouble with too many players is when in up to them to assist or pass, they overlook the fact of their partner, in his bid, having already counted on them for two tricks and possibilities, and they often raise the declaration on a hand already included in the original bid.

As stated before, an Initial one Major suit bid means seven tricks, four in the Bidder's hand, two in the partner's hand and one through playing both hands. In a one No Trump the Bidder has three tricks, the partner credited with two and the play of combined hands two.

In both instances two tricks and the advantages of playing the combined hands have been discounted. Therefore, the Declarer's partner should have at least three tricks in his hand before raising his partner's bid.
